MRS. REMUS NOW READY TO TALK IF GIVEN IMMUNITY

Wife of Rich Bootlegger-Convict Makes Offer to the Senate Daugherty Committee.

HUSBAND TOLD OF LIQUOR PROTECTION

Both Indicted in Jack Daniel Case—Important New Disclosures Said to Have Been Made.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, June 9.—Mrs.
George Remus of Cincinnati, wife of George Remus, millionaire boot-legger-convict, who, with her husband and 15 others, is under indictment in St. Louis for alleged connection with the "milking" of 800 barrels of whiskey last summer at the Jack Daniel warehouse, St.
Louis, is ready to tell the Senate Daugherty committee what she knows about her husband's huge payments for protection from prosecution—if she is granted immunity from the Jack Daniel charges.

Mrs. Remus has signified to the committee that if she obtains immunity in the St. Louis case she will tell the whole story, so far as she knows it, corroborating her husband on several important particulars. At the time of her arrest in Cincinnati on the Jack Daniel charge, to which she pleaded not guilty, she said:
"Everything that I did in the matter was legal, as far as I know, and I gave upon instructions from my husband."

Told of "Protection."
Remus, who was brought here
from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary for his purpose, told the Daugherty committee May 16, three days before the St. Louis indictment was returned. He had said $100,000 to $200,000 gallons of whisky under "protection," for which he paid $250,000 to $300,000, he asserted, to the late Jesse W. Smith, intimate friend of Attorney-General Daugherty.
Smith was one time a power in the Department of Justice without being on the payroll.

The committee has received important corroboration of the rich bootlegger's story. In a recent investigation, members examined canceled checks for $515,000, each signed by Remus, and bearing a stamp to show it had been cashed
by him or one of his agents.

The checks, which Remus had sent to represent payments for "protection," range in amount from $10,000 to $170,000. A number of them, aggregating $295,000, were sent to the late Jesse W. Smith, attorney for Remus, which Remus asserted was his private mark to show that the money was turned over to Jesse Smith.

Other Memoranda Found.
It is understood these initials were the only ones found on the checks. Other memoranda found indicating payments to persons in New York City who had previously been mentioned in connection with the liquor investigation. Two checks for $40,000 each were found. One dated in January, 1921, shortly before the present administration came into office. The committee has been fed that at that time Remus was facing a prosecution in Chicago and an exhaustive inquiry is now being made to determine what happened to the charges. The committee has also received important disclosures relating to alleged telephone conversations which are said to have taken place between Remus and a man other than Jesse Smith, who occupied an important position in the Department of Justice.

No important were the disclosures that the committee at once sought an interview with Attorney-General Stone to seek his co-operation in the future inquiry looking into the prosecution of those other than Smith, whom the committee believes to have profited by the payments.

Committee to Reassemble.
These new developments have made it impossible to stop the work of the committee with the adjournment of Congress. Shortly after the party conventions the committee will reassemble in Washington to take further evidence. At this time Attorney-General Stone will be given an opportunity to present such witnesses from his department as he thinks necessary to clear up the wrong impression which he says has been created by some of the testimony already taken. The Remus matter will also be concluded at that time, after which Senator Wheeler will draft a report.

LOWDEN "WILL NOT ACCEPT" SECOND PLACE ON TICKET

Former Illinois Governor in Statement Declares He Can Be of More Service in Private Life.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 9.—Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois and mentioned prominently for the Republican vice-presidential nomination, has issued a statement in which he says he will not accept the nomination "even if it were tendered to me."

In his statement, Lowden reiterated the stand he has maintained since he first was discussed for the nomination and after he was informed he would be highly acceptable to the administration as President Coolidge's running mate.

Text of Statement.
"I am not ungrateful of the importance of the high office of Vice President," the statement said. "However, since my retirement from public office, three years ago, I have become deeply interested in many farmer organizations. As a result of my own experience in farming, I am convinced that agriculture must be organized if it is to go forward successfully in this modern organized world."

"I am giving a great deal of my time to these various organizations, and if I continue to do so, I am assured by those most competent to speak that I shall be rendering a real service to the agricultural interests of the country and therefore to the country as a whole."

"If I were to step aside now, my associates in at least two of these organizations of which I am the head believe that it would seriously cripple the work of those organizations."

"Of course, I appreciate to the full the high honor my friends would confer upon me. I have been deeply moved by their expression of confidence and good will, and it is hard for me to disappoint them, but I must."

"I have given my most careful consideration to the question of where my duty lies and I have been forced to the conclusion that I can be of more service to the country through the activities in which I am now engaged, than I could be as Vice President."

"We shall not be disappointed if we are not chosen, but I am sure that the subject, that I could not accept the nomination even if it were tendered to me."

"I must adhere to this resolution."

LA FOLLETTE PLATFORM DENOUNCES MELLON RATES

Wisconsin Also to Present Demand for Special Session and Plank Praising Borah, Brookhart and Reed of Pennsylvania.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., June 9.—Republican insurgents, acting through the Wisconsin delegation, will ask the Republican national convention formally to condemn the official acts of Harry M. Daugherty as Attorney-General and Albert B. Fall as Secretary of the Interior.

This is disclosed in an official copy of the insurgent platform made public today by Robert M. La Follette Jr., son of the Wisconsin Senator, in the name of the Wisconsin delegation. The statement says further that Daugherty and Fall "be forever debarred from holding any position of honor or trust within the gift either of the Republican party or of any future Republican administration."

For Special Session.
The insurgents also would have President Coolidge summon Congress into extraordinary session on Monday July 7, 1924, for consideration of emergency legislation for relief of agriculture; to provide funds for payment of the soldiers' bonus; for consideration of the Howell-Barkley bill for the settlement of disputes between railroads and employees; for amendment of the rate-making section of the transportation act; for the reduction of "extortionate railroad rates" and for reclamation relief legislation extending the time of payment to farmers on Government reclamation projects.

It is further declared that the convention system of nomination presidential and vice presidential candidates "has failed" and that Senate and House members should be urged to "initiate and support such constitutional amendment and legislation as may be necessary to provide for direct nomination and election by the people of the United States of candidates for President and Vice President."

The insurgents to extend its congratulations to 31 Republican Senators and 211 Republican Representatives for display of courage and independence in voting for the bill enacted into law by the house of Congress and signed by the President, as a substitute for the Mellon plan.

Mellon Plan Condemnation.
In this connection request is made for legislation to give "full and complete publicity on tax returns," and for a "pledge to the American people that neither the plan, contains a declaration on immigration which restates the President's desire that international amities should be considered in carrying out our policy of limiting the inflow of foreigners, but does not specifically mention Japan."

The tax return plank contains a direct demand for enactment of the discarded Mellon plan, but takes the attitude that the present tax reduction is a beginning, which, under a continued Republican administration of the country's affairs,

G. O. P. MANAGERS CHILLY TOWARDS ANTI-K. K. K. PLANK

Despite Demand for Declaration, Tendency in Cleveland to Ignore Issue in Platform.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
CLEVELAND, June 9.—The last thing the average delegate to the Republican National convention appears disposed to do is go on record either for or against a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan. While the New York World's suggestion for such a declaration by both parties has resulted in a tremendous public demand, which is making itself felt here, the disposition of the party managers is to adopt a platform silent on the Ku Klux.

Plans are not yet completed for the appearance before the committee on resolutions of Dr. Charles Franklin Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve University, as spokesman of the committee organized at the suggestion of the New York World to urge in all the national conventions the adoption of some such plank as the newspaper has been advocating.

Dr. Thwing's silence as a Congressional clerkman in an educator and a publicist, will lend weight to his words that even reluctant party managers must heed. When he has been heard, there may be a different attitude among them.

Fully half the New York delegation, in case the roll were called, would support an anti-Ku Klux plank, but no individual coming from either above or below the Bronx, is prepared to battle for a vote putting the convention on record in around all Saturday midnight when the stores closed. Not to mention San Francisco where they took 44 ballots and the nominee got more votes all told than he did that autumn. As for the gathering in New York two weeks from now, they tell me that some of the right minded lady Democrats of what I once dubbed the Big Town have made the worst mistake in their lives.

No Fight on Floor.
The best informed opinion is that the Ku Klux issue stands little chance of being shifted from the committee on resolutions to the floor for ultimate decision. The rules of the convention will be so framed that unless there is a minority report favoring exorciation of the hooded order it will go unmentioned in the party's pronouncement of principles.

President Coolidge's endorsement of the Ku Klux before he is reported to have been blanketed by intimations from the Coolidge headquarters to forget the plank, has been a bitter disappointment with printed literature. This was designed to prove that if the Republicans ignore the Klan the Democrats can sweep the country by adopting an opposite course.

According to a newspaper pamphlet, B. C. Cregar, national committeeman from Texas and outspoken foe of the Ku Klux before he is reported to have been blanketed by intimations from the Coolidge headquarters to forget the plank, has been a bitter disappointment with printed literature. This was designed to prove that if the Republicans ignore the Klan the Democrats can sweep the country by adopting an opposite course.

Finally, the statement calls upon the convention to extend its approval and commendation to the following Senators for exceptional services:
George W. Norris of Nebraska, for opposing the effort to deliver Muscle Shoals "to private interests upon improper conditions and with inadequate compensation;" to James Couzens of Michigan "for his zeal in uncovering the frauds and irregularities in connection with internal revenue and prohibition enforcement; David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, for "disclosing the widespread graft and corruption in the Veterans' Bureau and under the administration of Charles R. Forbes; Tasker L. Oddie, of Nevada, for "demonstrating that grave conditions of neglect and inefficiency are still permitted to persist in that bureau; Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa for "his vigor in conducting the investigation of outrageous scandals in the Department of Justice; to R. B. Howell of Nebraska for "exposing the fraud and lack of efficiency in the administration of the Federal farm loan act;" William E. Borah of Idaho, for "the judicial manner in which he conducted the investigation of the unwarranted indictment of a fellow member of the Senate," and to Robert M. La Follette for "his signal service in bringing about an investigation of the corrupt leasing of Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserves."

Will flower into something splendid later on, and coupled with it is much prouder reference to the budget and the reduction of the Ku Klux—16,000,000 Catholics, 20,000,000 foreigners, 10,000,000 negroes and about 4,000,000 Jews.

Republican leaders in Indiana are determined that the Ku Klux Klan forces are strong, have been warning leaders of the convention that too many negro national committeemen may disrupt their forces in States where Ku Klux and negro voters are factors.

There is to be no reference to the soldiers' bonus, but much is to be said about the Coolidge care for the disabled veterans and the necessity for continuing this care without stint.

The Western delegates are working in the background of the convention confusion for an expression of a purpose to reduce the tariff on raw materials of the country and in another corner of the city the Protective Tariff League is maneuvering to get a rejection of the present provision of the tariff bill enacted into law by the President. It was this flexible provision which President Harding said would enable the correction of some of the indefensible rates of the present bill and the Protective League is afraid that some President might be minded to take that provision seriously and really cut down these rates.

Warren on the Platform.
Whether the platform will be built in Cleveland, Warren stated that, although material for the platform had been forwarded from Washington, some of it expressing the views of the administration, actual construction of the party pronouncement of principles would not begin until after the formal hearing of interested parties, probably Wednesday. Under this schedule the platform might not be reported to the convention

Ring Lardner's Convention Letter

It Seems They Will Have to Go Outside the Party to Find Someone Who Can Help It.

By RING LARDNER.
CLEVELAND, O., June 9.—Dear Editor:

If Mr. Coolidge should happen to win out, the next problem is who to name for vice president. They used to call the vice presidential nominee the running mate, but whose mate was that was on the ticket with Mr. Cox four years ago claims they're no truth in that rumorm.

Experts say Mr. Coolidge is a kind of a flop as a stump speaker so if he runs they will want somebody on the ticket with him that can talk. Looks to me like they might half to go outside of the party to find somebody that can help the ticket.

Taking to one side or the other, the newspaper boys that write politics all the year round and knows even more about it than I do have arranged a all-day golf tournament to take place at the Oakwood Country Club in Cleveland this here coming Friday. You can figure that out for yourself. Personally I have made an engagement to go golfing in the Chicago river Friday night.

But they don't nobody need to feel sorry for the Cleveland bon-faces as our visitors was give the choice of taking our rooms for the entire week or sleeping in the branches of a tree. Besides which if this convention is anything like some conventions I been to, why the big majority of the out of town guests will need their rooms all week.

As for town where they hold the Democratic convention don't half to worry it being over too soon. Baltimore was practically permanent and in St. Louis eight years ago, where everything was set even before the boys got there, the boys managed to hang around all Saturday midnight when the stores closed. Not to mention San Francisco where they took 44 ballots and the nominee got more votes all told than he did that autumn. As for the gathering in New York two weeks from now, they tell me that some of the right minded lady Democrats of what I once dubbed the Big Town have made the worst mistake in their lives.

until Thursday: the day for nomination, and might force a conclusion by the Cleveland Fair, Coolidge.

The Advisory Committee of 57 will meet today to formulate suggestions, and the Platform Committee itself, after hearings, will appoint a small subcommittee, actually to draft the platform.

Willis Instead of Daugherty for Ohio Chairmanship.
By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Despite reports to the contrary, peace seemed to reign in the Ohio delegation today and the Buckeye delegates were prepared to adopt a harmony plank when they caucus tonight.

Senator Frank B. Willis, according to the delegates here, probably will be chosen chairman of the delegation and Senator Simeon D. Fess will be given the place on the Resolutions Committee.

Friends of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney-General, were boosting him for the chairmanship of the delegation, but the Ohio leaders were determined that honor should be accorded to the two Senators. There was some talk yesterday of censuring them for their recent votes to override President Coolidge's veto of the bonus bill, but this talk was disappearing today and a harmony program was being urged by the leaders.

Daugherty's Statement.
Daugherty issued this statement: "While I appreciate the interest of my friends in their efforts to make me chairman of their delegation, I must decline. I am here as a delegate-at-large and shall not attempt to dictate to the other delegates. I am interested only in promoting the candidacy of Mr. Coolidge."

Louis H. Brush, newspaper publisher of Salem, was being hailed as the most likely man to succeed Rud K. Hynicka of Cincinnati as Ohio member of the National Committee. Hynicka announced several months ago that he would withdraw at this time.

Frederick H. Gillett, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was today named as the Massachusetts member of the Resolutions Committee. Senator Lodge has held that honor in many conventions. The Massachusetts delegation also chose William M. Butler, pre-convention campaign manager for President Coolidge, as the National Committeeman.

Gov. Cox was made chairman of the delegation in the convention. Senator Lodge had nothing to say either before or after the caucus. He was cheered when he entered the caucus room.

Senator Richard Ernst of Kentucky has been chosen as the chairman of the committee on rules of the convention. It was announced today by William M. Butler, pre-convention campaign manager for President Coolidge.

BABLER MAKES PLEA IN BEHALF OF MRS. HOCKER

Fight Over Who Shall Be Missouri National Committeewoman Taken to Coolidge Managers.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., June 9.—The Hyde-Babler political faction fight in Missouri was taken to the Coolidge headquarters by Jacob L. Babler, retiring National Committeeman, and Charles Hertenstein, chairman of the Efficiency Board of St. Louis. They were accompanied by Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City.

Babler demanded of Frank W. Stearns of Boston, that the "big two" in control of the convention for the President, Stearns and National Committeeman Butler of Massachusetts intercede with the Hyde organization to prevent the defeat of Mrs. Lon O. Hocker of St. Louis, who is seeking re-election to succeed herself as National Committeewoman from Missouri. Hertenstein demanded that Gov. Hyde should be eliminated from consideration for the vice presidential nomination. However, it has been understood for several days that Hyde was no longer on the list of possibilities of the Coolidge managers.

Interview in Private Room.
No information has been forthcoming as to anything resulting from the interview, which was in a private room in the Coolidge headquarters on the ninth floor of the Hotel Cleveland. Stearns is said to have promised he would take up the matter with Butler, who was too busy to see the Missourians at the time they called.

The other side of the controversy will be presented to Butler later in the day when Conrad Mann of Kansas City, who is seeking re-election to succeed himself as Governor, and Frank Hillman, all of Kansas City, will talk to Butler in Hyde's behalf and it is expected will tell the Massachusetts committee that the Hyde organization has decided that Mrs. Hocker shall not be elected and will ask that the President keep his hands off the local Missouri factional strife.

Babler told Stearns that the first Coolidge movement in Missouri came from his end of the organization, although the Hyde forces were in complete control of the selection of Coolidge delegates and that there had not been the slightest objection to the Coolidge managers placing the work in Hyde's hands.

Statement of Babler.
Babler said his end of the organization desired perfect harmony and was willing to step aside in the pre-convention campaign.

"We did that," Babler is reported to have said to Stearns. "But we are not disposed to meekly submit to a slap in the face now. Mrs. Hocker has performed her duties as national committeewoman with exceptional ability and there is no reason, based on party good, which would operate to defeat her. The only reason would be one of selfish desire for factional advantage. We do not believe the eye of campaign is a time for recognition of such tactics."

Hertenstein voiced his objection to Hyde for the vice presidency and urged that he be eliminated from all consideration. Stearns is said to have listened attentively but to have given no reply except that he would take up the national committeewoman situation with Butler. It is the general opinion that Babler would be unsuccessful in his effort to induce Butler and Stearns to take a hand in behalf of Mrs. Hocker. Influential members of the Missouri delegation, who are on terms of close political intimacy with the Governor, said today after the arrival of the Missouri delegation that Mrs. Grace Semple Burlington of St. Louis would be chosen in place of Mrs. Hocker.

Progressive on the Ticket Would Give Big Business Insomnia

William J. Bryan Writes That Whether the Bosses Will Defy the Liberals in Writing a Platform Is the Big Question.

By William Jennings Bryan.

(Mr. Bryan, in his capacity as journalist, will report both the Republican and the Democratic conventions for the Post-Dispatch.)

CLEVELAND, June 9.—The clans are gathering and the first political battle of the campaign is about to begin. Until the convention opens, newspaper men must guess, and prophecy in politics is usually as uncertain as prophecy in regard to the weather. The best that the weather prophet can tell us is that a storm has started in a certain place, and is heading in a certain direction, but it is always understood that the value of the prediction depends on whether the storm continues, increases or decreases its velocity and does or does not change its direction. So in politics, a prediction is based upon the situation as it appears when the prophecy is made; this one making the prophecy must be permitted to revise his guess as conditions change as they ordinarily do from hour to hour.

There is one thing, however, that is certain, viz., President Coolidge will be nominated without opposition; it can be added that no Vice President will be considered available unless he has the endorsement of the President, given publicly, or given by implication in the endorsement of his advisors. For a while there was talk of selecting a Progressive as his running mate, with a view to harmonizing party differences and securing Progressive votes. That seems out of the question now, first because harmony is impossible, and second, because the men in control of the Republican party are not willing to take any chance on the President's death. With a Progressive as Vice President, only one life would of the delegation. He dictated the naming of virtually all the delegates except those from St. Louis, and most of the delegates will follow his instructions. Babler, who has all the tickets allotted to Missouri for the convention, said today that he would divide the tickets equally among the delegates, and the fact that most of the delegates were contrary to him would not cause him to withhold tickets from them.

The Missouri delegation will meet tomorrow morning to elect a chairman and members of the convention committee. Gov. Hyde probably will go on the Resolutions Committee and Mann probably will be chairman of the delegation.

It has been decided that the Hyde-for-Vice President nomination speech will be by R. B. Brewster of Kansas City. Republican nominee for the United States Senate in 1922.

to encourage friendly relations and co-ordination between East and West, North and South."

R. B. Cregar, national committeeman from Texas, who had announced he intended to press for a plank condemning the organization, said today that pressure had been brought to bear on him from some quarters to avoid stirring up a bitter convention fight over the issue. He reiterated his determination, however, to appear before the Resolutions Committee, but there were indications that he might drop it if he failed to gain his point before the platform makers.

WAINSCOTING SKETCHES OF LORD NELSON

Line of Battle discovered in the Hero and Lady Hamilton. Used in Oldtime Inn. Correspondence of the Associated Press. POOLE, England, May 10.—A naval officer staying at the old "Lord Nelson," situated on a quay here, recently discovered some curious scratchings on wainscoting of his room. Investigation revealed these to be sketches of naval battles drawn by Lord Nelson, who stayed in that inn, Lady Hamilton. Other marks and scratchings have been dated as dating back to the days of sea-dogs of the Elizabethan age.

Boat Swamped and Returned Near Shore—Five on Board Saved.

Associated Press. SANTA ANA, Cal., June 9.—Six men and two boys, members of a party, were pounded to sea on the rocks of Newport today, near here, yesterday, the launch in which they were heading out to sea was swamped and capsized. Five others were saved.

Except one, the six men lost all their well-known business men of Santa Ana merchant. The two boys were with their father. The party had headed out to sea yesterday when a heavy rain flooded the boat and killed the men. As the boat drifted up against the rocks, it was smashed close to the jetty and the rocks.

The trial is being conducted at a Catholic school house, the County Courthouse was destroyed by fire in November, 1922. An array of counsel appeared for defense, including A. T. Dunne, Jefferson City, J. P. Peters, St. Louis, Voshell and Monroe, the Polina. Appearing for the State, Assistant Attorney-General H. Davis, Prosecuting Attorney, Graef of Gasconade County, the present indictments were filed and Prosecuting Attorney George J. Gove of Otago County, charged against Anderson. Finally, were filed in Cole County, but were dismissed by the State.

Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 9.—Four men of the marine corps were drowned off Quantico, Va., today when a small boat in which they were rowing on the Potomac River was capsized in a severe windstorm.

MINISTERS FROM HEBRIDES TO SETTLE ON PACIFIC ISLAND

Associated Press. VICTORIA, B. C., June 9.—Ministers of Graham Island, of Queen Charlotte group in the Pacific Ocean near the province of British Columbia, with colonists from the Hebrides, off the coast of Scotland, are planning by the Canadian Government.

Graham Island has about the same area as the entire Hebrides group, 3000 square miles. It is like the Hebrides in being watered and fertile, and indentations of the coast. The soil is fertile, but covered with heavy timber. This timber has been the chief resource, and during the World War the island was visited by producers of airplanes. The climate, warmed by the Japan current, is equable and the rainfall is scant.

Ministers are expected to be a valuable support for the transportation of the island, and the government is plentiful. Graham being a place for the flocks on the way North or South.

TWO GOLFERS KILLED
BY LIGHTNING

Former West Virginia Congressman and Companion
in Summer House.

By the Associated Press.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 9.
—S. B. Avis, former Congressman from West Virginia, and R. G. Al-tizer, vice president and general counsel of the United Fuel Gas Co.,
both of Charleston, were instantly killed yesterday when lightning struck a summer house at the Edgewood Country Club, in which they had taken refuge during a storm. H. G. Scott of New York,
a director of the United Fuel Gas Co., had left the house a few minutes before the bolt struck.
The three men had been playing on the club links and went to the summer house when the storm broke.

HOMICIDE SQUAD TO BE INCREASED UNDER NEW PLAN

Chief Hoagland Will Ask to Have 18 Men in Bureau for Investigation of Deaths by Violence.

The police homicide squad, hitherto composed of six detectives, is to be enlarged to the Homicide Bureau with 18 men under command of two detective-lieutenants, under the plan which Chief of Detectives Hoagland will present for ratification to the Board of Police Commissioners tomorrow.

With the reorganization of the squad Chief Hoagland will issue new instructions designed to obtain greater co-operation between uniformed men and detectives. These instructions are to place the new Homicide Bureau in full charge of all cases in which death by violence is suspected.

Bureau detectives are to be first on the scene, men, and the uniformed police must await their arrival before acting in any case. All clues in murder cases are to be submitted at once to the bureau, the assurance being given that if a uniformed policeman turns in a valuable tip he will receive full credit for it.

Three important unsolved murder cases here this year prompted Chief Hoagland to rearrange his homicide squad. The slaying of Marie Bauer, supposedly by a negro who dragged her into an alley and attacked her; the murder of Patrolman Anderson by gangsters or holdup men, and the latest—the killing of Mollie Margolin—were where they were when the crimes were discovered.

Detective Lieutenants William Murphy and Andrew Aylward will command the bureau, working in alternate shifts. Detective Sergeants Keely and Leary are to be their office assistants. The remaining 17 detectives assigned to the Bureau are to be divided as follows:

Three squads, composed of Detective Sergeant Eggenreither and Detectives Henry and Malone, Detective Sergeant Buchert and Detectives Mehringer and Kincer, Detective Sergeant Baber and Detective Matthews and Hefele.

Eight detectives, whose names have not yet been announced, will be assigned to special divisions of homicide investigation. The three squads will work on separate shifts, dividing the 24 hours between them.

This accounts for the fact that Liquid Granite is more than water-proof... that it wears.

BEER NOT A MEDICINE SAYS SUPREME COURT

Brewers' Appeal Attacking Validity of Willis-Campbell Act Is Denied.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 9. — The Willis-Campbell beer act, prohibiting the sale or importation of intoxicating malt liquor for medicinal purposes, was today declared valid and constitutional by the Supreme Court.

The law was attacked in appeals brought by the James Everard's Breweries, New York, and by Edward and William Burke, brewers of Guinness Stout. It was contended that the national prohibition amendment limited the power of Congress to legislation dealing with the use of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes, and that the States alone had authority under their police powers to regulate the use of liquors for medicinal purposes.

The Federal Government and 25 States urged the Court to interpret the prohibition amendment as leaving in Congress discretion to determine what constituted a legitimate use of intoxicating liquors.

The cases differed from that brought by Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, a New York physician, who won before Federal Judge Knox in his contention that physicians could not be restricted in the quantity of intoxicating liquor they could prescribe for medicinal purposes. He joined in the assertion that the eighteenth amendment was restricted to the use of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

The Government combated the brewers' case with the contention that beer had no medicinal value.

Declaring the purpose of the eighteenth amendment was to prevent the traffic in intoxicating liquor for beverage use, Justice Sanford, in handing down the opinion, said that in determining the power of Congress to prohibit the use of malt liquor for medicinal purposes, it was necessary to consider whether the Willis-Campbell law was aimed to carry out the purpose of the prohibition amendment. There was considerable difference of opinion, he said, as to the medicinal value of beer and other malt liquor. That question should be left open and debatable, he said, but there was no doubt that there was available to recognized medicine substitutes which could be used for malt liquor.

"We cannot say that prohibiting the use of malt liquor for medicinal purposes, it was necessary to consider whether the Willis-Campbell law was aimed to carry out the purpose of the prohibition amendment. There was considerable difference of opinion, he said, as to the medicinal value of beer and other malt liquor. That question should be left open and debatable, he said, but there was no doubt that there was available to recognized medicine substitutes which could be used for malt liquor."

"We cannot say that prohibiting the use of malt liquor for medicinal purposes, it was necessary to consider whether the Willis-Campbell law was aimed to carry out the purpose of the prohibition amendment. There was considerable difference of opinion, he said, as to the medicinal value of beer and other malt liquor. That question should be left open and debatable, he said, but there was no doubt that there was available to recognized medicine substitutes which could be used for malt liquor."

Such use of malt liquor for medicinal purposes, the opinion said, hampered and obstructed the enforcement of prohibition. It is clear that Congress, in enforcing prohibition, may adopt any lawful means to make it effective. It was held, and the only question presented was whether in prohibiting physicians from prescribing malt liquors for medicinal purposes it had exceeded its legislative authority. The Court answered that question in the negative.

H. S. PRIEST ASSAILED AS 'ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE ALLY'
Mestre, in Statement, Attacks Candidate for Dividing Support of Moore.

Former Judge Henry S. Priest, president of the Missouri Branch, Association against the Prohibition Amendment, is attacked as "the ally of the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan," in a statement today by Joseph J. Mestre, chairman of the Democratic City Committee. James J. Fitzsimmons, secretary of the committee, approved Mestre's statement, which was declared to represent the views of most of the committee.

The meaning of the statement is not that Priest has become a dry, but that, by his action in filing as a candidate for Governor, he is dividing the support of George H. Moore whom Mestre, Fitzsimmons and others of the committee are backing. The letter declares that Priest, if he were Governor, could do nothing to bring about repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead act. Therefore, his committee critics declare, Priest is "firing blank cartridges in a sham battle." His candidacy, it is declared, may bring about the nomination of a sympathizer of the Ku Klux Klan.

Moore is speaking in Joplin tonight, and in Carthage tomorrow night.

YOUTH, 19, TO WED WOMAN, 37

Father Gives Consent and License Is Issued.

Two marriage licenses with unusual features were issued today. One permits marriage of Albert J. Plate, 19 years old, of 2123 Evans avenue, to Miss Anna C. Weber, 37 years old, of the same address. The father of the youth, Edward J. Plate, consented. The other was issued to Solomon Felner, 30, of 6415 Clemens avenue, and Miss Nellie Lawrence, 36, of Hotel Chase. A duplicate of the license was issued on request, the couple announcing they planned to be married by an Episcopal minister and a Rabbi.

WHY "O"

History of the Fight Between Other Companies
uted to Both Camps
1920, but More Heavily
This Year's Campaign

I estimate that no man in the country has any hope for being elected Governor in 1920
unless he can easily get $50,000
to run on.

Any man who has been elected Governor in 1920
He can sell the Governor's office as standing ready to buy the announcement of withdrawal of nomination for the Governor.

By Curtis
The old line fire insurance

Hyde is unfriendly to the insurance industry, were widely circularized. A considerable talk of the Governor's resignation. With the gathering of largely disappeared.

In the campaign of two of the candidates for the governorship
the reciprocal insurance influence was part in the 1920 campaign.

These are but further chapters in a long history which has been waged by the reciprocal insurance companies in Missouri politics for years. The establishment of a personal obligation would be productive of office to this end the insurance interests entered into the 1916 government campaign with results that were startling. Revelations afterward showed that a portion of the funds had been brought out, but these were sufficient to indicate that reciprocal insurance organizations contributed to the campaign funds of both the Republican and Democratic nominees for the governorship in 1920, and that toward the end of the campaign, when it became apparent that Governor Hyde would be elected, they concentrated their contributions in his favor.

Without going into the merits of the controversy and without any pretense that there was not sufficient justification in the old line insurance company's methods in Missouri for the action of the State Insurance Superintendent in attempting to force down old line insurance, it stands as a matter of fact that the very person who became Governor and almost immediately after he had appointed his brother, Ben C. Hyde, Superintendent of Insurance, thereupon opened in this State an offensive campaign against the reciprocal insurance companies from every angle from which the reciprocal interests had been fighting them.

What Has Been to Benefit Reciprocal

The effect of this fight has been to benefit the reciprocal interests which contributed greatly to Hyde's election. Quite naturally the old line interests became antagonistic to Hyde and now are opposing the movement among Republicans to elect Hyde's nomination to the vice presidency at Cleveland.
The situation in the present government campaign probably would draw little attention were it not for the known activity of the reciprocal interests in the campaign years ago. But in the light of the activity it is noticeable that Charles M. Howell, attorney for the reciprocal interests, is stationed in the campaign of Democratic W. Nelson of Brunswick.
It also is noticeable that Floyd Hyde of Kansas City, who was one of the attorneys for Superintendent Hyde in his fight on the line interests, is a rival candidate of Nelson for the nomination for employment, however, with the first Kansas convention of the Republican party, and at the time was opposed to a division by Hyde.
The insurance companies competing with the reciprocal insurance companies who had secured considerable success in the past, and which would be valued by the reciprocal interests as a contribution to the fight and which might be very costly to the reciprocal interests might want to withdraw from the campaign.

The history of the insurance
war in Missouri and the relationship between the old line and reciprocal insurance companies is a long and interesting one.

Reciprocal insurance companies have been successful in Missouri and in many other states in the United States in securing the nomination of their candidates for Governor and other offices.

ST. LOUIS, MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 9, 1936.

WHY "OLD LINE" INSURANCE INTERESTS ARE TURNING THE HOSE ON GOVERNOR HYDE

History of the Fight Between Reciprocal and Other Companies — Reciprocals Contributed to Both Campaign Funds in State in 1920, but More Heavily to Hyde Interests—This Year's Campaign.

I estimate that no man need seek the nomination for Governor and have any hope for success unless he is prepared to spend $50,000 or more. ***

Any man who has been much in the public mind in state can easily get $50,000 or $100,000 to make the race for Governor. He can sell the Governorship. There are interests which are standing ready to buy it.—From State Senator Paint-er's announcement of withdrawal from the race for the Democratic nomination for the Governorship.

By Curtis A. Betts.

The old line fire insurance interests, angered by the three-year fight made on them by Gov. Hyde, a fight they hold to have been for the benefit of the reciprocal insurance companies, which contributed in large amounts to the Hyde campaign fund in 1920, recently opened a vigorous fight to prevent the nomination of Hyde for the vice presidency in the Cleveland convention. Letters charging that Hyde is unfriendly to the insurance business, and, therefore, should be defeated, were widely circulated among insurance men when there was considerable talk of the Governor as a candidate for the vice presidency. With the gathering of delegates in Cleveland, this talk has largely disappeared.

In the campaign of two of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for the governorship there are indications of an interest in the reciprocal insurance influences which had an important undercurrent part in the 1920 campaign.

These are but further chapters in the history of the insurance business which has been waged by these two conflicting big business interests in Missouri politics for more than four years, in which in the elections of men to high office effort has been made to establish a personal obligation by the candidate which it was hoped would be productive of official favor after the election.

In this the insurance interests entered into the 1920 gubernatorial campaign with results that were startling revelations after the election. Only a portion of the facts have been brought out, but these are sufficient to indicate that reciprocal insurance organizations contributed to the campaign funds of both the Republican and Democratic nominees for the governorship in 1920, and that toward the end of the campaign, when it became apparent that Gov. Hyde would be elected, they concentrated their contributions in his fund.

Without going into the merits of the controversy and without any question that there was not sufficient justification in the old line insurance company, methods in the campaign for the election of the Governor, Ben C. Hyde, Superintendent of Insurance, there was no question that the campaign was opened in this State an effort was made on the old line companies from every angle from which the reciprocal interests had been fighting them.

What Has Been to Benefit Reciprocals

The effect of this fight has been to benefit the reciprocal interests which contributed greatly to Hyde's election. Quite naturally the old line interests became antagonistic to Hyde and now are opposing the campaign among Republicans to elect Hyde's nomination to the vice presidency at Cleveland.

The situation in the present gubernatorial campaign probably would have been different had attention been not been given to the activity of the campaign years ago. But in the light of that activity it is noticeable that the campaign was opened in this State an effort was made on the old line companies from every angle from which the reciprocal interests had been fighting them.

It was at one of these hearings that the reciprocal insurance interests began unfolding the story of the great influence of the rural insurance interests in the 1920 campaign. John Kennish of Kansas City, lawyer and former Judge of the Supreme Court, who about 15 years ago was Superintendent of Insurance, appeared for the old line insurance companies opposing the bill charging its purpose was only to give a superintendent friendly to reciprocal interests a power to drive old line companies from the State.

Kennish shocked the committee members by the statement: "The reciprocal insurance interests before the last election laid their plans to control the Missouri Insurance Department. They planned to control the naming of the superintendent by the Governor no matter whether Hyde or Atkinson was elected."

He evaded efforts of members of the committee and afterward the efforts of newspaper reporters to draw from him the facts on which he based his assertion, but inquiry at other sources developed that a campaign was being managed by Ben C. Hyde to induce his brother, the Governor, to appoint R. W. Boley of Kansas City to the job of Superintendent of Insurance. Boley was a law partner of Charles M. Howell, the reciprocal attorney. For this reason he was opposed by old line interests.

The fight on Boley was so intense that the Governor, notwithstanding Ben Hyde, said he was confident Boley would be appointed, instead, appointed his brother, who had been in charge of the efforts to put Boley in. Ben Hyde's appointment was without protest from the old line interests representative of which said privately that they felt the best thing to do was to realize that they could say nothing to influence the Governor.

Insurance Men's Reasons For Opposition to Gov. Hyde

The following is the text of a letter from Kansas City insurance interests widely circulated among insurance men recently:

GOV. ARTHUR M. HYDE of Missouri is seeking the nomination on the Republican ticket for the office of Vice President of the United States, and we understand he is in some sections receiving favorable mention in that connection.

For your information we would advise that Gov. Hyde has been very unfriendly to insurance interests in the State of Missouri, and in addition to that has greatly maligned and misrepresented those who are engaged in that business.

"We, accordingly, feel that Gov. Arthur M. Hyde is not the sort of person who should receive the nomination for Vice President of the United States. He has failed and refused to co-operate with the business interests of this great commonwealth. He has failed and refused to co-operate with Governors of other States, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the President of the United States in their efforts to preserve and protect property and human lives and to encourage education among our people with that end in view. In fact, the record of Arthur M. Hyde as Governor of the State of Missouri proves his unfitness—his lack of qualification—for the high office to which he aspires. And further, we believe it would be unwise and unsafe to intrust him with the responsibility and power incident to the office of Vice President of the United States."

I am handing herewith a resolution adopted by the Missouri Association of Insurance Agents at its annual meeting Oct. 5 and 6, 1923, at Excelsior Springs, Mo., which will more fully explain his general position as regards business interests.

Yours truly,
Insurance Agents' Association of Kansas City.
By Executive Committee,
F. D. GLORE, Secy.

order was issued and this case is now in the courts.

The 1923 Legislature then was approaching and it was the intention again to introduce the retaliatory bill and also another bill giving the Superintendent greater power in ordering rate cuts. There was a Democratic majority in the Senate, which probably could not be reached by Republican influences. Superintendent Hyde refused to sign the bill. He was a Democrat, former Attorney-General, and had been in Kansas City with all the political faction, and Jacobs, who was allied with the Shannon political faction, to handle his end of the litigation with the insurance companies. Both were in Jefferson City frequently during the 1923 Legislature, in which the retaliatory law again failed of passage, though the Superintendent, because of his refusal to sign the bill, was given increased power.

In May, 1923, Superintendent Hyde cited 13 Massachusetts insurance companies to show cause why they should not be barred from Missouri, because Massachusetts had refused to license a Missouri reciprocal on the ground that its organization did not comply with the Massachusetts law.

In July, while restrained by the courts from his plan to carry out his reduction of rates, which was a 15 per cent reduction, and also barred three Rhode Island companies from Missouri because Rhode Island refused to license a Missouri reciprocal, Hyde was promptly joined in his later reduction order, and reached an agreement with the Massachusetts and Rhode Island Superintendents by which he withdrew his orders against companies of those states.

Contributed to Both Campaign Funds

In this connection, Homer B. Mann, who for many years was virtually Republican boss of Kansas City, and who represents a number of old line companies as agent, made an interesting statement at the time. He said:

The Governor was in rather an embarrassing position. These reciprocal men contributed very largely to his campaign fund, in all probability without his knowledge. But they undoubtedly received a pledge from somebody that Boley would be appointed. We understand they contributed to both the Democratic and Republican funds, and were confident of his election. Superintendent, no matter who was elected Governor, but in the last few days of the campaign, when it became virtually certain Hyde would be elected, they contributed heavily to the Hyde fund.

On the other hand, Fred Kreismann had been active in the Hyde campaign in St. Louis, and I had not been asleep here in Kansas City. We were old line men.

Ben Hyde, who was in the inner council of the Hyde organization in Kansas City, admitted the reciprocal contributions.

Tom H. Mastin, William Drennin, James Garvey and E. G. Trimble, all reciprocal insurance men, but very active in past Democratic campaigns, contributed to the fund to elect Arthur M. Hyde Governor, he said. Charles Baird, a banker and treasurer of the "Hyde-for-Governor" campaign committee, said the four men mentioned gave "heavily, quietly and late."

The retaliatory insurance bill failed at that session of the Legislature, although Barbee and A. L. Hart, then Superintendent, worked diligently in its behalf. As has been told, Barbee shortly afterward became associated with Howell, while Hart made a connection with the International Life Insurance Co. Other former Insurance Superintendents who appeared for the bill were Walter K. Chorn of Kansas City, who also had been an associate of Howell in the practice of law, and Charles G. Revelle, who had become attorney for the International Life.

What Happened After Hyde Took Office

Ben Hyde took office as Superintendent Oct. 5, 1921, and three months later ordered all old line fire insurance companies to reduce their rates in Missouri 15 per cent, and notwithstanding the reciprocal bill had failed, issued an order a few days later barring Illinois and Indiana old line companies from Missouri because they refused to require Missouri reciprocals to make a $25,000 deposit each to protect their insurance.

Hyde was restrained by the courts from putting his rate cut into effect, and shortly afterward compromised with the Illinois and Indiana superintendents and withdrew his order against companies of those states. He also withdrew his rate order, but a few months later issued another order cutting rates 10 per cent. A restraining

MERCHANT MARINE OF AIR URGED BY ADMIRAL

Retired Officer, Here, Says Plan Would Render Invasion Impossible.

America's genius in efficient transportation methods of goods and people is being challenged by the development of commercial aviation throughout Europe. The development of an adequate merchant marine of the sea in this country would create a reserve military defense that will render an invasion impossible.

This message, to be expanded in a series of addresses in St. Louis today and tomorrow, was presented at the noonday luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce by Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam, U. S. N., retired, whose 50 years in the American navy, rounded out by his command of the Pacific fleet, has been a success. He has been succeeded by his enlistment in the cause of urging this particular form of preparedness.

"Sea of the Air."

"There is a new sea—the sea of the air," declared Admiral Fullam, "and any city that hasn't a harbor for these ships to anchor in to receive and discharge mail, freight and passengers—will be in the same predicament as a city of the sea that has no facilities for ships to anchor in; or like a city with no railroad station."

"Commercial aviation does not do away with railroads or ships, but it supplements them. It puts speed into transportation, covering distance in from one-third to one-fourth the time of other forms of transportation. The new medium was born in this country in the brains of two American boys, the Wright brothers—and the whole world is using it feverishly in peace and anticipating its terrible power in war. In this country are at a standstill, although we have won all records in development, design and records."

"It now remains for our business people to increase their commercial property by utilizing these ships of the air as foreign nations are doing. There is no question but what the Zeppelins were a commercial success, even before the war. Except for our transatlantic liners, we have no commercial aviation, though it should be noted that the army is now using its ships for transporting freight between stations."

Utility in War.

"In war, these merchandise carrying ships are used to carry bombs, torpedoes and mines. In war, or threat of war, these ships would be mobilized with their pilot personnel and added to the fighting forces of the army and navy. In peace, they are used to carry mail, and we have thousands of such ships, used in legitimate, peaceful purposes, and the world sees how they can quickly be mobilized on either coast, then they will give up thinking of crossing the sea, because they know perfectly well our ships would fly out 100 miles and blow their fleets from the sea."

"A powerful commercial air force will prevent any attack from across the sea. The Generals and Admirals of Europe know it and have admitted it. Command of the air is command of the sea, formerly carried over the sea with impunity by powerful navies of great nations to crush weaker powers. Now these navies find their wings clipped."

A Peace-Compelling Agency

"This international war rendered virtually impossible, because the defense is so powerfully strengthened. You can't transport your air power by navies, which thus renders air power a wonderfully righteous and beneficent peace-compelling agency."

Admiral Fullam closed by an appeal addressed to St. Louis business men to support the St. Louis Flying Club in its efforts to maintain adequate landing facilities and to promote commercial aviation.

"Your landing field is a diamond mine," he said. "It is the foundation of the future. To your flyers, and young men competent to navigate planes, you must look as your future locomotive engineers. Every business man in St. Louis should get behind the landing field and it should be purchased and equipped by the community as the one great, modern business asset that appears above the horizon."

They are looking ahead, ready to accept the challenge of the future, then, the new railroad systems and the merchant marine of the air will pass you by, and go to cities where they can deliver the goods."

Amalgamation Sought

The National Aeronautical Association, the speaker explained, is the parent body seeking to amalgamate the flying organizations of the various cities, with a view to charting transportation lanes and obtaining uniform legislation. F. B. Patterson of Dayton, O., son of the late John H. Patterson, cash register manufacturer, who was in the air service in the World War, is president. The St. Louis chapter has about 70 members, when it should have more than 1000, Admiral Fullam stated. He said the Dayton chapter has 1200 members, the Akron, O., 450 members, and St. Joseph, Mo., twice the St. Louis number.

Supplementing his address, the

CO-OPERATION BETWEEN MACDONALD AND HERRIOT IS EXPECTED IN LONDON

British Labor Prime Minister Now Believed to Agree in Principle With French Socialist Leader.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. (Copyright, 1934.)

LONDON, June 8.—Co-operation between Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Edouard Herriot, French Socialist leader, in European affairs, is forecast.

Assuming that the Mayor of Lyons becomes Premier of France in the probable event of the fall of the makeshift Francois-Marsal premiership, he will enter office with an informal agreement in principle between Britain and France already in existence. In its broadest outline this understanding will cover the Dawes report, French security, the Ruhr and the League of Nations.

The Labor Prime Minister of Britain and the Socialist chief of France will not be able to meet here this week, as tentatively arranged, owing to developments in Paris. But assurances have reached here that whatever happens about President Millerand, the Francois-Marsal Government is but a stop-gap and Herriot will be in office within a few days. His visit to Mr. MacDonald is now expected to take place about June 20.

Meanwhile Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Herriot have been in touch through British and French Socialists, who are close personal and political associates of the two leaders. The French embassy here, which is not regarded with favor by the left wing in France and the left wing in Paris, have not been informed of the negotiations, which accordingly are entirely unofficial.

The method used to get in touch forced by the fact that Mr. Herriot is not in office and hence unable to function through diplomatic channels—is welcomed by both Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Herriot as a chance to exchange views informally.

Are Agreed in Principle

From a thoroughly competent source I learn that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Herriot are agreed in principle of the following general points: The French evacuation of the Ruhr is now expected to be arranged later.

It is agreed by Mr. Herriot that as soon as the Germans pass the necessary legislation to give effect to the evacuation, the French will be ready to take over their pledges, the French economic evacuation of the Ruhr will be ordered. This will be accompanied by an immediate evacuation of German territory. Mr. Herriot, like M. Poincaré, thus agrees to French economic evacuation before, and not after, actual working of the scheme.

M. Herriot agrees that military evacuation of the Ruhr will take place after the Dawes scheme has been in operation long enough to prove German good faith by a show of works, also just as soon as the problem of French security is solved on lines indicated below.

Mr. MacDonald, in view of this, will not press for military evacuation in advance of the scheme coming into operation.

Both statesmen favor getting the Dawes plan into operation as soon

OPPOSING GOVERNOR'S PLAN COSTS JOB

"Tel" Grether Fired as Chief Deputy Game Commissioner —Was Against State Parks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 2.—E. T. (Tel) Grether, Chief Deputy Game and Fish Commissioner, has been discharged for opposition to Commissioner Wileyand, and Frank H. Wileyand, recently appointed Game and Fish Commissioner.

Grether has been succeeded by Charles W. Gillis, of Chillicothe, who is in charge of the office here. The position pays $2400 a year. Grether's immediate resignation was demanded in a letter sent from St. Louis last Friday by Commissioner Wileyand.

Opposition by Grether to migratory bird laws and to a system of state parks which might be used as sanctuaries for birds and game, are the principal reasons for his dismissal. Wileyand questioned Grether about his opposition to these matters last week and was informed that Grether had not recently expressed such opposition. Wileyand had previously received from Gov. Hyde a letter by Grether May 4 last, in which Grether said the state park system was "very inadvisable."

Twenty-five per cent of receipts from hunting and fishing licenses are by law set aside for purchase of a state park. The Governor favors purchase of a number of small parks in different parts of the state, rather than one large park. Grether is said to have opposed any park.

Grether's home is in St. Louis, where he formerly was a newspaper sport writer.

Police Will Pick Up Honorary Game Warden Badges.

Chief O'Brien has instructed the Police Department to watch for and take up all honorary Deputy Game and Fish Warden badges not signed by the recently appointed State Fish and Game Warden, Frank H. Wileyand. The order was issued in response to a request by Wileyand who stated that he desired to collect all honorary badges issued by his predecessor, Frank Midgleton. It was stated that several hundred of the honorary badges are in circulation.

GOV. SMITH'S VIEW ON MODIFICATION OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Favors Fixing of Alcoholic Content Within Science and Reason So That States May Decide.

SAYS THE SALOON IS GONE FOREVER

Condemns the Ku Klux Klan as "Contrary to Very Principles on Which Country Was Founded."

A revision of the Volstead act to show states as disposed to legalize the sale of light wines and beers is urged by Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, telegraphed throughout the country by those promoting his candidacy, in a public statement for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

Gov. Smith said he believed the Ku Klux Klan to be "contrary to very principles upon which this country was founded."

He said he favored having Congress fix a maximum of alcoholic content "based upon science and sound reasoning," allowing each State to establish for itself whatever alcoholic content it chose so long as it did not overstep the limit set in the National Law.

"Saloon 'Gone for Good'."

The amount of light wines and beer to be sold in states that chose to legalize the traffic, as well as the manner and media of their sale, should be left to the states themselves, said the Governor. "What ever alcoholic strength is made legal in future, the saloon has gone for good, the Governor believes."

The Governor stated his views in a letter to D. Robertson Brown, of New York, chairman of the Self-Determination League of Liberty. Brown had written to ask the Governor where he stood on the prohibition question and what he thought of the reported efforts of the Governor's friends to prevent the insertion of anti-Ku Klux Klan plank in the Democratic platform.

The clause making up one-half of one per cent the legal maximum of alcoholic content, the Governor said "was written into the Volstead act by the Anti-Saloon League agents to whom I referred as 'fanatical drays.' I am not changed my attitude towards them any more than I have towards the 'fanatical wets.'"

"I maintain the present hypocritical attitude towards the whole question of prohibition would be greatly relieved," the Governor wrote, "by having Congress fix a maximum alcoholic content based upon science and sound reasoning, thereafter leaving every State to enact any statute it pleased with regard to regulation of the traffic in light wines and beer within the alcoholic content prescribed by Congress may also have what it desires."

"Hard Drags Under Ban."

A "hard drags" and practical change in the Volstead law which would honestly serve the cause of temperance would make a valuable contribution to public action against hard liquor, which is undoubtedly put under the ban by the language of the eighteenth amendment.

WANTS--REAL ESTATE

PART THREE.

Unusual Tales Adventure, Tragedy, Mystery, Humor From Real Life

By Robert Welles Ritchie.
JIM TO THE RESCUE.

ONCE I knew a man who owed much to a dog—his life, in fact. Appleton was a woodsman and fur trapper whose home was at Malone Springs in the heart of Oregon's Cascade Mountains where the mail road used to run from Upper Klamath Lake on to Crater Lake. A wild—wild country those days when I used to go up there for trout. Once you got back from the few settlements around Pelican Bay, you could ride through heavy timber for a week northward without striking town or house.

This Appleton once packed us into the headwaters of Red Bluff Creek on the high divide west of Klamath. While I was riding behind him on the trail he told me something about bear trapping. This was prompted by our passing a fallen-in trap. The thing had the aspect of a low cabin, solidly built up from the ground with green logs. A door, which was in fact a section of log too heavy for a bear or a man to lift from within, blocked the entrance. My guide told me the whole interior of the trap was floored with logs sunk under the level of the side walls to prevent a trapped bear's digging out.

"I know all about digging out of one of those traps," Appleton volunteered with a grim laugh. "I tried it once."

"I had three traps set about three-four miles apart and the nearest fully five miles from my cabin. One day my dog Jim and I went out to make the rounds of the traps to see what we had. Jim and I lived alone then; our nearest neighbor was down at Pelican Bay eight miles south."

"We got to the first trap and found the door still up but the bait, which was a piece of horse meat, pretty high, had been stolen. I crawled inside to see better if I could finger what varmint had been working at the bait. Jim stayed outside."

"Those bear traps work on a figure-four system, you know, with a trigger which drops the door when the bear tries to pull the bait off the hook at the far end of the inside. Takes a pretty strong pull at the trigger usually to drop the door. Always when I'm in I cut a heavy stick to prop up under that section of log which makes the door so nothing can drop on me while I'm inside."

"This day I forgot and—bam!—that 100-pound section of log came down in its grooves behind me. I'm caught in my own bear trap."

"No way for a man scrooched over on his knees to open that door from inside—no purchase for his hands. No way to dig out because of the logs buried under the dirt floor. I've got my hunting knife with me; but to whittle through a three-foot green log along the sides with a hunting knife would be like trying to stop a forest fire with a soda pop bottle. I'd starve first."

"So Jim's my only chance. He's wise to what's happened to me, for I can hear him running round the trap and whimpering—now and then trying to paw at the logs. Finally I get Jim up close to a little chink where he can see my eyes and I try him out on my only chance.

"'Billy,' I say to him. 'Go get Billy.'"

"Billy is the fellow who runs the store down at Pelican. Jim knows him, even if maybe he don't know his name is Billy. I'm banking on Jim's knowing that store fellow's name."

"Well, I keep on repeating that. 'Go get Billy,' for over an hour and that hound of mine just whimpers and scratches on the logs. I never lose patience. Just quiet-like I say over and over, 'Go get Billy.' It's my only chance against starving there or going mad."

"Well, sir, when night came on my Jim finally gets the idea and hot-foots it off through the woods. Before morning Billy and three other boys from the settlement come up to the trap and I'm saved."

FOUR BYSTANDERS SHOT IN HOLDUP AT COLLINSVILLE

Policeman Clubbed When He Interrupts Cigar Store Robbery — Gunmen Flee in Auto, Firing Wildly.

ONE OF FUGITIVES BELIEVED WOUNDED

Onlooker Picks Up Weapon Dropped by One of Men and Shoots at Machine That Escaped.

Four bystanders were wounded when wild flung shots sprayed the streets of Collinsville, Ill., at 5:45 o'clock last night, in a pistol fight which followed an apparent attempt of five men to hold up the United Cigar Store there, next door to the police station. None of the four was seriously injured.

The robbers escaped in a Buick touring car, from which they fired about 30 shots at Policeman Lee Thompson, 50 years old, and Night Desk Sergeant W. A. Campbell interrupted the holdup. George Gass, manager of a telephone company there, who emptied an automatic pistol the robbers dropped, at the firing car, thinks he wounded one of them, as the man slumped over the door of the machine and was pulled back in by a companion.

Policeman Thompson was leaving the station when the Buick drove up in front of the cigar store. Three of the men got out and went inside. Acting on a "hunch," he caught the stranger struck him as suspicious. Thompson started to follow.

As Thompson reached the door, one of the men whirled with drawn pistol, and ordered "Hands up." Instead, the policeman tried to pull his own weapon, but one of the two men in the car leaped out and knocked him down with a pistol.

Sgt. Campbell came running from the station, and the four men jumped back into the automobile, which sped north to Main street, two blocks away. Gass, who was passing, grabbed up the 22-caliber automatic that one of the robbers dropped, and snatched it at the machine. Policeman Thompson fired two shots.

The return fire of the robbers sent persons on the fairly crowded streets scurrying in all directions. Turning west on Main street the robbers continued their flight, and their pursuers had been delayed. It was here that the four bystanders were wounded as the shots went into the crowd.

Those injured were Miss Nellie Hart, 23, of Collinsville, flesh wound in the right arm; Louis Wagoner, 19, of Collinsville, hit in right arm; Joseph Hill, 45, of Cassville, Ill., shot twice in right thigh, and Jacob Leight, 68, of Cassville, slight flesh wound in abdomen. Leight was saved from serious injury when the bullet struck his watch and, not penetrating, fell in his waistband pocket and was deflected.

The car, the license number of which no one noted in the excitement, escaped toward St. Louis. Police here have under arrest several police characters, whom witnesses of the shooting will be asked to look at. They will also view a man in the city hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the foot and a black eye he says were inflicted by holding men about 10:45 o'clock last night. A cap bearing the mark of a Granite City cleft-hammer was dropped by one of the robbers at the cigar store.

NEW ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL TO BE DEDICATED TUESDAY

Archbishop Gleason to Preside Over Religious Ceremony Which Includes Procession

A massive six-story building of buff brick now stands virtually completed on a high tract of 18 acres at Clayton road and Bellevue avenue. Richmond Heights, two blocks west of Forest Park. It is St. Mary's Hospital, to be conducted by the Sisters of St. Mary, a Catholic nursing sisterhood founded here in 1871. A few years ago a big shed where Tony Foley's and the late "Kid" Becker's gamblers had toyed with other men's money occupied the site.

The new hospital will be dedicated with a religious ceremony, which Archbishop Gleason will preside, tomorrow morning. This will begin with a procession across the road from Christian Brothers' College at 4:45 a. m.

The building, which cost about $1,200,000, will be ready to receive patients this week. It has an ordinary capacity of 200 patients, with not more than two to a room, but this can be doubled in emergency. Room rates will be $2 to $3 a day, or $3 for a bed in a double room, but the deserving poor will be admitted free. St. Louis University will administer the medical work. This is the sixth hospital conducted by the Sisters of St. Mary. The mother house of the order is at St. Mary's Infirmary, Fifth and Olive streets, and St. Mary's Free Hospital is conducted here.

The Loeb-Leopold Enigma Viewed Through Their Habits, Reading Tastes and Campus Reputation

Both, at 16, Knew More About Vices and Psychopathic Manifestations Than Average Man Hears of in Lifetime; Also Appraised All Murders and Discussed Flaws.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Born to a life of luxury and leisure, Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Leopold were surprised with the healthy diversions of youth before they were past boyhood. Endowed with superior intellects, they reached the university at 14, when normally they should have been entering high school, and possessed of morbid appetites for new adventure, they were at 16 hardened in the dissipation, which most men of their inclinations are only taking up at 25.

Something about this supernormality in one direction and subnormality in another produced two sinister dual personalities that could conduct an experiment in murder at 5:30 p. m. and mingle brilliantly with party guests at the exclusive Ravinia Club three hours later, without permitting either form of activity to get in the way of the other.

On the campus of the University of Chicago, where a murder of the Franks boy and the slayers' confessions are still the chief topics of conversation, they speak of their recent campus associates, Loeb and Leopold, as marvelous students, purists of speech, splendid dressers, great egotists and great "drunks."

"Gin Round" Before He Was 15. When "Dick" Loeb came home from the University of Michigan for Christmas vacation, three years ago, one acquaintance told the correspondent, "he was the drunkest youngster I ever expect to see. He was limber, the way he always gets when he has two or three drinks. He was only 15 then and had been a regular 'gin round' for a year or more before that."

"With Leopold it was different. He could carry his liquor better. He never got beastly drunk, although he liked to have a bottle handy."

This remark is characteristic of many. Virtually all who knew the boys, either personally or by reputation, were familiar with their drinking escapades when they were scarcely out of short trousers. Their sophistication in worldly practices kept pace with their precocity in their classes. They belonged to what was known as the "fastest set" on the South Side, and they were the fastest members of the set. Thrown with a somewhat older group, by reason of their mental developments, they seemed to strive to outdo their fellows in vices to keep from being considered "little boys," which they were, in years.

Incorrigible as a Child. As a child, Loeb is said to have stirred his indulgent family to deep concern because of his incorrigibility.

Recently it has been learned that when he was 16 years old his father, who was president of the Board of Education in Chicago, was in school in hope of curbing these alarming tendencies by placing him under a private tutor. Dr. Allen Hoban, formerly professor of sociology in the University of Chicago and now president of the Southern College, was consulted and is said to have advised the parent to place the lad in a psychopathic institute for examination. This, however, was never done. The boy continued at school and achieved such superior records that his viciousness was passed over. He was graduated from "prep" school at 14 and finished the University of Michigan Arts and Science course before he was 18, the youngest graduate ever turned out by that institution. For the last school year he had been taking post-graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Leopold Cruel When Small Boy. Leopold's childhood record was similar. He was conspicuous for his cruelty as a small boy; he seemed to gain enjoyment from inflicting pain or death on his next animal, and exhibited a marked disrespect for his parents. He, too, was an "infant prodigy" at books and finished "prep" school at 14. He also, was at 18 the youngest Bachelor of Philosophy ever to go out from the University of Chicago and at the time of his arrest was in the graduate school studying law and taking advanced courses in law and sociology.

The closest associates of both were members of a clandestine group of millionaires' sons and daughters who pride themselves upon being "intellectually emancipated," a group who make better grades than the average student, but who also keep later hours and go in more strenuously for liquor and "petting."

Their conduct, like their thinking, is independent of conventions and taboos. They scorn the judgment of other students, glorying in their superior wealth, their sharper wit, their greater capacity for forbidden pleasures. Some of them are "free" poets. Some are political radicals, although their radicalism is seldom anything so conventional as research.

At luxuriously furnished rooms on East Fifty-fifth street some of them were accustomed to assemble at the St. Louis Evening Discussion Club. Through the canteen atmosphere of Oriental trappings, they held their weekly disputations on such topics as the supernatural, death, Freudism, weird philosophies and sex complexes. Leopold often acted as the gathering, and it is particularly remembered that the subject of his most recent talk was:

"What would you do if you were left alone in a room with a dead person?"

On other occasions religion and morality were his topics and such points as these from his observations are recalled:

"There is too much silly sentimentality in the world. Facts and truth are everything. A man is justified in going to any extent to learn the truth."

"An offense against good taste is much worse than an offense against morality."

"It is better to live intensely and die young than to live a long life and be bored to death. I don't care to live after 25."

Loeb More Socially Inclined. It is rather hard to tell just how popular the two boys formerly were with the rank and file of students who now show a willingness to discuss their campus habits. One suspects that a great many who were their friends are now merely "acquaintances," who didn't know them very well, or who "used to see them around school a good deal." But there is ample evidence that both were well liked in their circles, and especially in this circle of Loeb, who was more socially inclined than Leopold.

Some months ago, it is said, there was a rumor at the university that the close companionship of Leopold and Loeb was not exactly what it should be. It was whispered that Leopold, with a peculiarly vicious trait of character and a more powerful personality, was dominating the younger boy to the extent of turning him from his other friends. Several girls who were friends of Leopold's have ceased receiving his attentions. The report, however, quickly was passed and nothing more was heard of it until the development that followed the Franks' murder.

Whether there was a basis for it did not seriously interfere with Loeb's welcome in exclusive circles on the South Side. More than one heiress and a few of his companions, both on the campus and at the dancing clubs. One or two have admitted a little more than friendship and several, it is said, have been shedding tears since his arrest.

"Picked Up" Young Women. As for Leopold, there are fewer to mourn his fall. He was widely celebrated as a "kiddie," but as a general thing preferred male companionship on the campus. Away from school, it was somewhat different. One of his forms of adventure was "picking up" young women in Jackson Park, and often Loeb was his co-adventurer. They would drive to various parks or to the swamp district at Wolf Lake, which incidentally is notorious as a resort for spooners, and if Kalamazoo College, was consulted and is said to have advised the parent to place the lad in a psychopathic institute for examination. This, however, was never done. The boy continued at school and achieved such superior records that his viciousness was passed over. He was graduated from "prep" school at 14 and finished the University of Michigan Arts and Science course before he was 18, the youngest graduate ever turned out by that institution. For the last school year he had been taking post-graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Leopold had been a deep student of bird habits, as well as of sex psychology, and in this paper which incidentally won him the esteem in ornithological circles, there runs along with the professional exactitude of detail a thread of human tenderness that now seems strangely out of place. like meeting the "low brow" as equals. They had to hold their superiority unquestioned—they and their clique—only in mental contests that they could do it. It was the same way with baseball and track. For fear of compromising their dignity they missed all the pleasures of the boyish game of catch. It was a pastime for weak intellects. "Look at those poor nuts," Leopold remarked in contempt as he rode with detectives the other day past a golf course in Jackson Park. That was typical of his attitude and of Loeb's regard for sports, although Loeb did, sometimes, play tennis—occasionally with the boy he murdered.

The maze of theories now being offered for the motive of their reversion to savagery, some light may be shed by the brand of literature that absorbed them. They gorged themselves on mystery and horror tales both in the popular magazines and in the works of celebrated masters.

Feasted on Crime News. They feasted on crime news in the daily papers as well as on accounts of the investigation into their own crime, and discussed the merits of each murder, picking flaws in alibis and speculating on the clues on that or that other case. The usual conclusion after such discussions was that had the murderer only used "intelligence" he might never have been used, or if the detectives had been better they would have solved the mystery. In Loeb-Leopold conversations the two boys were the criminal and prosecutor all in one. To their associates, however, they were the study of alien tongues.

"The 'grew' was for material to be used in fiction of their own."

Delved Into Degeneracy. Second only to their morbid interest in crime was their desire to delve into the psychopathic aspects of degeneracy. Leopold was known for this at the Discussion Club of which he was a moving spirit. It is said that at 15 he was thoroughly familiar with and could discuss in technical phrases more subjects under this head than the average man hears about in a lifetime. His paradise was the medieval Europe of Aretino, Boccaccio and Rabelais.

A complete collection of these erotic works filled his home library and the fact that they are nearly all printed only in foreign languages seems to have spurred him to the study of alien tongues.

Strange old stories of grotesque licentiousness, of lust, rapine and murder. This was the food—this was the literature of degeneracy. Leopold's mind was fed by this superhuman intellect to the point where reading lost its "kick," where getting a "thrill" had to come from actual experience in the fields he had traversed in imagination.

Played Bridge Well. In contrast to Leopold's dislike for outdoor sports, was his passion for auction bridge. It is said he could read with uncanny accuracy the hands of opposing players and was a match for Chicago's most reputable "sharks" in the game.

The only bit of writing he ever did for publication also renders more striking the paradox in his nature. It recalls the quality of character that cropped out in Warren Lincoln, the author of a hard-core murder whose dominating passion was for flowers. This was a scientific article relating to the habits of the rare Kirkland warbler, which appeared in the January issue of "The Auk," a periodical devoted to wild bird life.

HYDE LOCKED OUT OF HIS STATEROOM WITHOUT LATCHKEY

Governor Elected to Sit in Observation Car Rather Than Awake Mrs. Hyde.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CLEVELAND, O., June 8.—The Hyde special, bearing Missouri Republicans to the convention, reached Cleveland at 10 a. m. St. Louis time, today, without undue incident, except an experience last night of the Governor.

Mrs. Hyde had retired early and locked the door of her stateroom, so when the time came for the Governor to retire about midnight, he was locked out and had no latchkey. He didn't want to disturb Mrs. Hyde or the rest of the sleeping occupants of the car by hammering loudly upon the door, so he elected to sit in the observation car until the train should stop and then climb through a window. The train did stop for a few minutes between 12 and 1 o'clock to permit examination of a brake shoe, and when the crowd collected to watch disposition of that detail the Governor hastened off up the platform toward his stateroom window. He was smilingly unconcerned, and did not seem to how he had gained entrance to his quarters.

More Van Drivers Called Out. All of the 200 drivers employed by the St. Louis Van Owners' Association are on strike today, as the result of the union this morning calling out the 100 men who remained at work when the others went out May 31. The dispute is over the wage agreement signed April 13, both sides asserting the other has not lived up to its terms. Conferences are being held this afternoon.

Ents of the nestlings. Finally the male approached, singing, but made no attempt to feed. Being alarmed, we decided to take matters into our own hands and feed the young birds ourselves.

"We caught several flies, tying on my side at the nest. I succeeded in feeding them, very much to their satisfaction."

"During this adult male approached very near and scrutinized me carefully, apparently not alarmed. Soon I was able to feed him, too."

To sum up such a character as Leopold's is a futile endeavor; to describe it further is unnecessary for it was described by Lord Byron a hundred years before Nathan Leopold was born. In this present-day prodigy of books and blasphemy one sees the reincarnation of "Damocles."

In law as an infant and in years a boy.

In mind a slave to every vicious joy; From every sense of shame and virtue weaned;

In lies an adept, in deceit a fiend; Versed in hypocrisy while yet a child; Fickle as wind, of inclination wild;

Woman his dupe, his heedless friend a fool; Old in the world, though scarcely broke from school;

Damocles ran through all the maze when the trail leading toward them became too hot.

Homes of Fathers Guarded. Loeb's confession followed that of Leopold almost exactly in every detail except that the youngest of the two millionaires' sons directly accused his companion of striking the blow that killed Franks, whereas Leopold had declared that Loeb was the actual murderer. Loeb also asserted that Leopold was the one who suggested the crime and planned its most intimate details.

Several detectives have been assigned to guard the residences of the Leopold and Loeb families on the South Side following the receipt of numerous threats of death by various members of the two families. These threats have come by mail and telephone. Steps also were taken by Mr. Loeb to have a guard placed about his country estate at Charlevoix, Mich. Orders were sent to the Charlevoix home that all packages received there must be opened under the house.

SLAYERS MADE NOTES ON OTHER'S CONFESSION

Memoranda of Leopold and Loeb Relative to Details of Crime Prove Their Sanity, Crowe Says.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 8.—Notes taken by Richard Loeb while Nathan Leopold's confession of the murder of Robert Franks was being read to him, and notes by Leopold while Loeb's confession was being read, in turn, are being guarded by State's Attorney Crowe. It being his contention that the notes, as well as clippings of the State's "perfect hanging case" against the boys, would serve in a court to prove them both sane.

The notes were made, it was revealed, when Mr. Crowe directed that the confession of each of the millionaires' sons be read to the other, and each objected to certain incriminating, or inaccurate statements. Each was given a pad of paper and Loeb, in his precise manner, noted numbered exceptions to Leopold's confession as read by the stenographer, who had taken it down, while Leopold noted fragmentary exceptions closely grouped in the corner of a sheet of paper.

State Ready for Trial. Mr. Crowe announced last night that the State was ready for trial. The boys will be arraigned Wednesday and he will try to have the trial date set for July 15, the soonest possible under criminal court procedure.

Clarence Darrow of the defense counsel today announced that Leopold and Loeb would plead not guilty.

The youths spent yesterday listening to entertainment and religious services at the jail, apparently having fallen into step with the other prisoners.

Typewriter Recovered. The last link in the chain of evidence against the boys was forged with the recovery from a party in prison of the typewriter on which the $10,000 ransom letter was written, Crowe said.

The grand jury will continue to examine witnesses, the State's Attorney said, to put their statements on record under oath and prevent later changing. Indictments for conspiracy to kidnap for ransom and murder are still possible, he said, as a preparation against a plea of insanity which the defense has indicated may be made.

The typewriter was found after a week's search in approximately the exact spot that Loeb, in his confession made public Saturday, declared he and Leopold had thrown it when the trail leading toward them became too hot.

Homes of Fathers Guarded. Loeb's confession followed that of Leopold almost exactly in every detail except that the youngest of the two millionaires' sons directly accused his companion of striking the blow that killed Franks, whereas Leopold had declared that Loeb was the actual murderer. Loeb also asserted that Leopold was the one who suggested the crime and planned its most intimate details.

Orders were sent to the Charlevoix home that all packages received there must be opened under the house.

SUSPECTS IN ATTACK ON GLENN YOUNG GIVE UP

Carl and Earl Shelton of Williamson County Furnish $20,000 Bonds Each.

Carl and Earl Shelton, indicted in Clinton County, Ill., on charges of attempted murder in connection with the shooting of S. Glenn Young and Mrs. Young May 23, have surrendered and given bonds of $20,000 each at Carlyle. It was made known by their lawyer in East St. Louis today.

For most of the time since the shooting the “Shelton boys,” as the brothers are known in Williamson County, have been in hiding in East St. Louis, while arrangements for their bonds have been made.

Their lawyer, Joseph McGlynn, said today that the Sheltons would deny knowing anything about the attack on the Youngs, who were fired upon from an automobile as they were in their car near the Kaskaskia River.

The Youngs have since been in a hospital in Belleville, and Mrs. Young, the more severely wounded of the two, has lost the sight of one eye. Young is expected to leave the hospital this week. Following the shooting, Ku Klux Klan partisans of Young, deputized as special policemen, waited at the town limits of Herrin for the return of the attacking party. The guards, after stopping and looking into a number of cars, fired upon a car which did not stop at their command, and Jack Skelcher, who has been named by Young as one of his assailants, was killed. A man called “Brown,” also known as Briggs, and under indictment in Williamson County previously for robbery, was with Skelcher and was wounded. He is in jail at Marion. The automobile proved to be a stolen car.

Four of the Klan special policemen have been indicted in Williamson County on murder charges, as the result of the killing of Skelcher.

PAYMENT OF BONUS WILL NOT BE SERIOUSLY DELAYED

Favorable Action on Deficiency Bill in December Will Meet Situation, Coolidge Is Told.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 9.—Failure of Congress to pass the second deficiency appropriation bill, carrying other items one for administering the bonus law, was discussed by President Coolidge and Budget Director Lord today at a White House conference, after which it was indicated that the action was not expected to seriously delay operation of the compensation law. It has been pointed out by officials that several months must necessarily elapse before payments under the law could be started and that, pending that time, administrative expense would be the only necessity. Favorable action on the bill in December, it was indicated after today's conference, would meet the situation.

Federal income taxpayers, however, who made full payments on March 15 will not be able to get their 25 per cent refund allowed by the new revenue law until the bill is passed. An appropriation of more than $16,000,000 to be used in making the refunds was carried in the bill. After the conference it was said that only one provision of the bill would be carried out in full, an item for $2,500,000 to fight the foot and mouth disease in California.

“AUTHOR COP” AND ANOTHER TO BE TRIED FOR NEGLECT

Patrolman Charged with Failure to Arrest Barber—Other Alleged to Have Fallen Asleep.

Two policemen will be tried by the Board of Police Commissioners at its meeting tomorrow on charges of neglect of duty.

Patrolman J. Elbert Jones, “the author cop,” who wrote “A Review of Famous Crimes,” is charged with failing to arrest Tony Musso of 1020 North Sixteenth street for keeping his barber shop open on Sunday, May 24. An additional charge against Jones is that instead of arresting Musso, he punched the Italian in the jaw and left the place.

Patrolman Herman Spehr went to sleep in a Ford touring car parked at an oil filling station, Seventh and Sidney streets, at 2:35 a. m. May 24, when he should have been walking his beat, Sergt. Stangler, his superior, charges.

25,000 WATCH BROWNIES SHUT OUT THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONS, 5 TO 0

Dave Danforth's Pitching And Team's Fine Defense Combine to Stop Yankees

New Yorkers Reach First Base Repeatedly, but Most of Them Remain There—Our Dave, Nagged by Huggins, Voluntarily Tosses Out Bad Balls.

By Herman Wecke.

Dave Danforth, the Browns' southpaw, backed up by fielding that at times bordered on the sensational, pitched Sister's men to their second straight victory over the world's champion Yankees yesterday, by a score of 5 to 0. The largest crowd of the season, announced by Business Manager Bill Friel as just a little under 25,000, witnessed the Browns capture their fourth successive game.

The victory placed the Browns back at a 389 percentage for the season and placed them in fourth place.

Danforth yielded eight safeties. These safeties were scattered over seven frames and in each of the frames the New Yorkers put at least one man on base. But with men on the paths, the Browns' defense rose to its greatest heights. This was especially true in the last six innings. In four of the frames, the first New Yorker to face Danforth was out. In the fifth frame, Danforth got on the path, but was able to get no farther than first base.

So impatient was the Yankee attack with men on the paths, that the most of them tried to get something on Danforth. They appealed to Umpire Billy Evans to see what Dave was doing with the sphere. Evans accommodated them. He looked. But he could find nothing.

Danforth Himself Throws Out Balls.

After one appeal by the Yankees, Evans talked to Severed. The catcher went out to the hill and spoke to Danforth. After that, Danforth himself threw no fewer than half a dozen balls to Evans to be thrown out of the game.

While pitching to Ruth in the eighth, the left-hander tossed back some of the baseballs toward him by Evans.

It was in this same frame that Evans walked out and pointed an accusing finger at Danforth. In this instance, Dave as for himself as to split freely on his hands and then rub the sphere. This was the only instance where a ball was taken away from the Browns' southpaw.

But bag as they would, the Yankees could not break down Danforth's great pitching, or rather the Browns' defense.

How the Yanks Failed.

Just how badly the Yankees fared at pinch hitters can be told as follows: Danforth pitched the game with a single, but did not get beyond the bag. Two of the next three batters popped out, while the Mighty Babe Ruth struck out.

In the second, Fipp started with a single, but the three men were retired on easy pop flies. In the third, after two men had sent up easy skiers. Dugan singled; but Ruth popped to McMillan.

Great Defense Saves Dave.

Danforth was in hot water in the fourth. But it was in this round that the Browns' airtight defense came to the fore for the first time. With one out, Fipp doubled. McNally walked and Scott got an infield hit to fill the bases. Hoffman was the first Yankee to ground to an infielder and a double play resulted, via the Robertson-Severed-Saler route.

Another double play stopped the champions in the fifth, while the Browns followed in the sixth and seventh. In the eighth, Kenny Williams went to the left field fence to make a glove-hand stab of Mousell's long drive. Witt was on first at the time. Then in the ninth, McNally walked. Robertson leaped up and grabbed Scott's liner with one hand.

Pennock Cracked Out.

On the offense, the men of St. Louis routed another member of Huggins' Big Five. This time it was Scotty Hark Pennock. In the first four singles and a sacrifice netted two runs. Jacobson's double and McNally's single added one in the fifth, while in the seventh, two singles and two doubles with only one out, produced two more tallies and sent Pennock to the showers. In the 8-1-3 innings, Pennock labored, he was out in 12 innings. Sister and Jacobson each drove in one run and McNally the other three.

Ernie Wignard and Sam Jones are scheduled to pitch in the third game of the series today. Play at 2 o'clock.

ONS, 5 TO HISTIC FUTURE OF HARRY WILLS HANGS ON RESULT OF FIGHT TONIGHT

WILLARD TO VIEW BOUT

Motor Unwilling to Close Wills' Contracts Until After Battle Tonight.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Merry makers in large and financially strapped numbers are preparing to judge on the fight form of Harry Wills, perennial and eternal challenger for the world's heavyweight title.

At the present writing the most formidable competitor of the United States team in track and field appears to be Finland, which has six or seven first places clinched, if records mean anything.

It seems incredible that the United States, or any other country, without the fullest possible representation, can hope to overcome this initial handicap of 70 points.

ON the other hand, as the first six places are scoring positions, it is possible by throwing a large number of candidates into the other scoring positions, for the United States to make up much of the initial 70 points conceded to Finland.

The five positions behind first place score a total of 15 points. Thus, in the case of the United States, there would be safety in numbers. A second, third and fourth would outscore a first.

Yet today we face reduction in the personnel of all of our athletic squads—albeit because we have not enough money.

If the adult inhabitants of this country today would deprive themselves of just one cut of pie for lunch, and turn over the proceeds, the Olympic fund would be doubled—and the United States victory would be certain.

THEYRE Ball. Danforth, still nagging Dave Higgins, unable to rout Danforth by legitimate means, starting nagging over the ball pitched by Dave, the design being to get the Davidson going.

The umpire could see nothing wrong with Danforth's pitching, and, by way of showing up Higgins, Dave himself tossed out several baseballs that had become damaged during the regular course of play.

It's about time to get up on this young man, who has won his way in the face of a former manager, in the face of the umpire and despite a hostile ruling by President Ban Johnson.

Danforth had a talk with President Johnson when Ban Johnson was here last week. Johnson now believes that Dave is doing everything legally. With such an endorsement the rest of the baseball world ought to wake up and let Danforth alone.

Uruguay Soccer Team Beats Swiss 3-0, to Win Title

South Americans Break Down Sturdy Opposition and Thrill 60,000 Fans.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 9.—The Uruguay soccer football team today won the Olympic title, defeating the Swiss team in a fast and furious battle, 3 to 0.

The game was bitterly contested from beginning to end. The South Americans, displaying the superior brand of play and the fine sportsmanship which has made them the idols of all Paris, fought down unexpectedly sturdy opposition while a crowd of more than 60,000 persons, which filled the Colombes stadium to capacity, cheered frantically.

The weather was ideal. The stadium was filled to the utmost of its capacity with 60,000 excited spectators, while more than 5,000 others, clamoring futilely for admittance at the gates, caused a crush in which several women were trampled and injured. Numerous others fainted.

In the preliminary match to decide third and fourth places in the Olympic competition, the Swedish team defeated Holland, 3 to 1. The game was a play-off of a 1-to-1 tie played yesterday.

Heavy scoring featured yesterday's round in the Independent League. In the trio of contests, a total of 33 runs were scored, an average of more than 11 a game.

The best hurling exhibition was turned in by Blake, who permitted four safeties. Igoe of the Shells hit three home runs and a single.

With flight pitching a four-hit game, the Grunders shut out the Southwest Nash team yesterday, 7 to 0, to gain first place in the Mercantile League. This was easily the feature game of the circuit yesterday.

Heavy scoring featured the two games played in the Wilson Senior circuit. In one of the contests 27 tallies were scored and in the other 28. The Orioles won on a forfeit from Fenton.

Five-hit games by King and Roncker were the outstanding features in the Froebel League yesterday. The scores:

NEW YORK, June 9.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Although the stock market remained a quiet affair, total sales amounted to only about $25,000,000. It retained the better tone which it displayed before the close on Saturday. The fact that no additional reductions in crude oil prices were announced led to a fair amount of short covering in the oils. This buying stimulated similar operations in other parts of the industrial list. Ralls meanwhile continued to be in good demand and achieved a further advance. There was a disposition to consider the market overvalued and to give weight to the absorption of sound securities by small investors. Easy money was another cheering influence. The call rate on the exchange started at 2 1/2 per cent and was reduced to 2 per cent shortly before noon and to 2 per cent at 1 o'clock. The latter rate is the lowest since the 2 per cent which was reached by one unrepresentative transaction in November, 1919. Disregarding that transaction, today's closing rate was the lowest since April 12, 1919.

"With the London market closed for Whit Monday and with the continental markets inactive because of the same holiday, the foreign exchanges were extremely quiet after an early accumulation of orders had been cleared up. Sterling was up 1/4 of a cent at $4.21 and French francs were up 1/4 point at 5.09 1/2 cents. These fluctuations were devoid of significance and many of the other European exchanges were quoted at precisely the same figures as at the close on Saturday. Greek drachmas, however, continued their reaction, losing 5 points at 1.57 cents. This compares with a price of 1.55 cents which was reached soon after the declaration of a Republic was announced.

"Liquidation of July cotton in anticipation of the termination of trading in that option continued, and with somewhat less vigor in the growing areas, had a depressing effect on values. There was scattered selling of long cotton that was bought in anticipation of the week's Government crop report. All the futures were lower from the start and October showed a net loss of 38 points at a late price of 25.49 cents. This market also was forced to function without the usual foreign influences.

"Trading in wheat remained devoid of particular interest. Corn was firm on covering of shorts because of unfavorable weather.

A Sound Security Yielding 8%

Offices Service Preferred Stock combines unusual safety with an attractive yield of 8% at the present market.

In the first four months of 1936, City Service Preferred Stock earned net, sufficient to pay dividend requirements for the entire year on its outstanding Preferred Stock.

In the last three months of 1935, or since this preferred security was first issued, net earnings have averaged more than three times as much as dividend requirements.

KID GLOVES IN SUMMER CAUSE MAN'S ARREST

Detectives Recognize Him as Burglar—Evidence of Robbery Attempts.

Thomas Skinner, 22 years old, an ex-convict, was arrested by detectives Saturday night, after their attention was attracted by kid gloves he was wearing.

He had walked from the lobby of the Ozark Building, Tenth and Pine streets. Observing the detectives, he broke into a run, but they overtook him after a chase of half a block.

Returning to the building, police discovered that a rear door of a music shop had been jimmied and that burglars had gained entrance to the second floor by this means. The next discovery was that the office of the General Brokerage Co., room 214, had been entered. The combination of a safe was lying on the floor, along with several punches and a hammer. The safe, however, had not been opened and indications were that the crackman or crackmen had been frightened away.

Skinner's automobile was parked near the building. In the tonneau were changes of clothing, a sledge and other tools which might be used in safe-breaking. The prisoner denied knowledge of operations in the Ozark Building and said he had loaned the automobile to his brother.

He is under bond to appear for trial next Monday on a charge of burglary in connection with the robbery of the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation branch, 3721 Washington boulevard, Nov. 22 last, in which $50.42 was taken from a cash box.

Thumb Print as Evidence.
A thumb print left on this box is the only evidence against Skinner. It has been photographed and placed on a stereopticon slide for use at the trial. The enlarged print will be thrown on a screen so that the jury may observe the characteristics. Police say correspond to Skinner's print.

Detectives, believing that Skinner knows more about the Ozark Building affair than he has admitted, find significance in his wearing kid gloves on a sultry night in June. They think that in view of thumb-print evidence in the other case, Skinner had made up his mind to keep his fingers carefully protected thereafter.

Skinner has served terms of five and two years in the penitentiary for robbery and burglary.

FLYING CLUB WILL HOLD AERIAL CIRCUS JULY 4

Lambert Field Thrills to Include Acrobats Riding Wings of Looping Planes.

The Flying Club of St. Louis will stage an aerial circus July 4 for the benefit of its fund to keep the Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field near Bridgeton in condition as the city's aerial depot. The meet will be at the club's field.

The club members have found it a heavy drain on their treasury, the upkeep of such a field and they believe that the responsibility is as much the public's as theirs. Harry H. Perkins, in charge of the show, makes plain.

Tickets will be placed on sale at the Arcade Building tomorrow at 50 cents apiece.

Every effort is being made to make the circus the most exciting and spectacular ever put on here. Cycle Horchema, the famous stunt flyer, has agreed to be on hand. The club is negotiating for a girl acrobat whose specialty is riding the wings of a plunging, looping ship. A derby race between nine planes in full view of the spectators throughout the course, special forms of flying, toy balloons, chugging and other thrills are slated.

Tomorrow at the noon Chamber of Commerce Rear Admiral W. F. Fuller will present a special trophy to the Flying Club to be used as the main prize in the derby. A special display of fireworks has been contracted for.

$11,500 UNDERWRITTEN TO BUY DANIEL BOONE HOMESTEAD

Property in St. Charles County May Become State Park. Under Plan of D. A. R.

Children of St. Charles and Wentzville have underwritten the sum of $11,500 for the purchase of the Daniel Boone homestead in the southwestern part of the county. Twenty-one persons signed notes.

The short campaign to underwrite the money, was conducted by the D. A. R. of Wentzville, under leadership of Mrs. M. E. Foristell. It is hoped that the State Legislature eventually will appropriate a fund to reimburse the underwriters and take the homestead over as a State park.

Daniel Boone lived in the house in the latter part of his life. He was a magistrate and often in summer dispensed justice while seated beneath a great elm tree near the house, which has become known as "the judgment tree." A painting of this primitive outdoor court now hangs in the State Capitol.

Negro Youth Drowned.
Earl Houston, 15 years old, of 1515 Lawton avenue, a negro, was drowned in the river at 5300 South Wharf yesterday afternoon while attempting to swim 50 feet to the shore from a boat. A hemp sack with a piece of rope for a belt, which Houston had used as an improvised bathing suit, is supposed to have weighted him down.

Our Usual Goodfellow Service On Millwork and Interior Finish

YOU are mistaken if you think that all of the woodwork in a house is laboriously constructed by carpenters on the job. You can't afford to pay workmen high wages to tinker away their time building windows, frames, doors, sash or wall cabinets when they can be built in our planing mills at such low prices.

Our millwork is built of strong straight-grain or figured-grain lumber especially suited to the purpose. If it is to be exposed to the weather, we construct it of the proper kind of lumber selected for rot-resisting qualities to assure permanency and hold the finish perfectly.

Goodfellow window frames are accurately fitted and tightly joined. They are weatherproof, and insure smooth-running windows under all conditions. There are no expensive delays. We guarantee our usual on-time delivery.

Goodfellow machinery, accuracy, speed and lower factory costs save you time, labor and money.

Only a few more days of our free offer!

Several weeks ago we made a most unusually interesting and valuable offer to our patrons. We stated, you remember, that for a short time we would clean a rug or carpet free for anyone who accepted our offer.

Immediately, a large number of St. Louis housewives took advantage of the opportunity to save the cost of having a rug cleaned, at least $4.50, or the labor of beating and sweeping it. They told their friends how wonderfully this rug was cleaned by our experienced man, and how the colors were brightened and freshened. And we've been busy every minute, taking care of the calls for this free service.

But the offer is about to be withdrawn! For only a few days more will it be possible to have one of your rugs or carpets cleaned free. We urge you, therefore, to get in touch with us today. If you have a phone handy, call us. Or clip and mail the coupon, and one of our experienced men will be at your home at the hour you set. You understand, of course, that you will not be obligated in any way.

We sincerely hope that the few women who have not yet taken advantage of this remarkable offer will do so at once, as we never expect to extend another such opportunity.

A Ton of Freight Moved A Mile for Less Than a Postage Stamp

Large figures are, as a rule, bewildering to the public, but the statistics recently issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the freight operations of the American railroads during 1923, present some easy-to-understand and very significant comparisons.

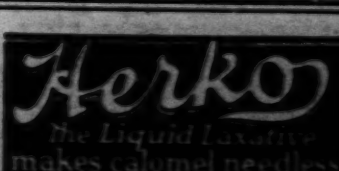

These figures show that the average revenue received by the American railroads for hauling one ton of freight one mile during 1923, was 1.16¢, as compared with 1.17¢ in 1922 and 1.25¢ in 1921. The average for 1921 was the highest in recent years; but since then there have been substantial reductions in rates. As compared with 1921, the average rate paid in 1922 represented a reduction of 5%; and that paid in 1923, a reduction of about 11.6%.

These are small figures when applied to one ton of freight, but when multiplied by 413,562,122,100 tons-miles of freight handled by the railroads last year, the slight reduction per ton-mile makes an appreciable showing. In fact, the aggregate saving in the freight bill of the shipping public since January 1922 has been more than $1,000,000,000.

Think of the figures quoted above—one ton of freight was hauled during 1923 by the American railroads for one mile at a cost of a little over 1¢. Figured in terms of an every-day commodity, this represents the movement of 800 pairs of shoes one mile; the actual carrying charges per pair being so ridiculously small as to have no effect whatever on the retail selling price.

Does this indicate that freight rates are too high?

THE WEEKLY SERIAL ON Love, Marriage AND THE Modern Woman

Next Monday—ARTHUR TRAIN on "The Dangerous Age in Marriage"

HOW YOU MAY WORK OUT A MARRIAGE PARTNERSHIP

Having shown in a recent article that the fifty-fifty economic basis for wedlock is now evolving to cope with the high cost of living, and that wifehood and motherhood may not completely express the woman any more than sheer husbandhood and fatherhood the man, Inez Haynes Irwin here devotes herself to the answer of the vital question which the partnership marriage raises—how about children?

By Inez Haynes Irwin.

IF marriages founded on an economic partnership, that is, where both husband and wife are self-supporting, succeed, as I have said in an earlier article, in producing about the same number of children as marriages made on the old basis, how is it accomplished? The answer is, of course, that after her period of incubation, the economically independent mother gives her children over to the care of an expert and then goes on with her work. Very often she continues her work after the economic necessity for it has passed. How does she justify herself in this?

Most people will agree that when a married pair, whether deliberately or casually, have brought children into the world, their first duty is not to themselves, but to those children. Most people will agree, also, that men and women should do preferably the thing they want to do, and the thing they are fitted to do. By and large, what people want to do most is the thing they will do best.

I do not believe that any woman who hates it—as many do, in the very marrow of their bones—should do domestic work. If she hates this job, she will do it badly and everybody in the house will be unhappy. But if, whether working inside or outside the house at a job she likes, she can provide expert help to do the domestic work, everybody in the home, mother, father, children, will be happy. If by any untoward turn of fate, circumstances compelled a woman to choose between the cultivation of a career which would entail the neglect of her children and the personal care of her children, I believe that she should cast aside her career and devote herself to her children. Fortunately, in these days, very few women who have ability are placed in a position where they have to choose.

Child-Raising a Talent. Into this conclusion there enters another consideration. Authorities on motherhood, whether trained or untrained—and by these last I mean physicians, nurses, teachers, welfare-workers, or descriptions—will tell you that there is no inevitable relation between wanting to be a mother and becoming a good one. Women who have never borne children are often very good mothers. The gift of training children wisely has nothing whatever to do with the accident of child-bearing. Whether any given woman will become a mother is largely a matter of chance. Whether, having become one, she will turn out a good mother—that is almost equally fortuitous.

No more than that the woman who hates domestic work should do it, should women who hate the care of children—or women who are nervously devastated by it—have that care. It is deleterious to the women themselves, ruinous to the children, sinister in its result on the home. Every mother ought to have the chance to choose between the two jobs—taking care of her children, or providing expert help to take care of them.

Normal people—and again by people I mean men and women—can do only one job well. Most women do not possess the vitality to be a mother and something else beside. You may answer to that, that fathers are fathers and wage-earners besides. But the duties of most American fathers, with the exception of Sundays and holidays, are limited to a brief interval before nine in the morning, and a briefer one after six at night.

Occasionally, we see women who are able to keep house, bear children, bring them up, maintain a social position and pursue an art, profession or trade besides. But these are women with great natural gifts of organization and efficiency; psychologically immune to small irritations; of colossal vitality—super-women, in short. They are the wonder and the envy of the normally vitalized, or the under-vitalized. We cannot make rules by them. Most women, like most men, have vitality enough for only one job. Most women must either run the home job or the outside job. They cannot do both with justice to either.

Who takes care of the children who result from these economic partnership marriages? Always when economic conditions produce what seem alarming results, society comes to the rescue. Economic conditions have driven young people to the economic partnership marriage; and already the world has begun to simplify the domestic situation for them. For two decades society has been assisting the working-mother with the day-nursery. Now it is coming to the rescue of the professional or artist mother.

To meet this need there are springing up in big cities all over the country schools which differ radically from the schools of our childhood that, to the graduates of the hidebound educational system of a quarter of a century ago, they seem infantile paradises.

These schools are manned by a corps of physicians and nurses, especially interested and trained in the care of children; they possess spacious playgrounds and quiet sleeping rooms, indoors and outdoors. They take children as young as a year and a half. The older children stay during the usual school hours. But the babies are kept at the school all day, fed, put to sleep, returned to their mothers at night.

An Enlightened Solution. It is not necessary to point out what a boon this is to the mother who works outside the home. These schools are at present private enterprises. Financially, they are not within the reach of all. But the result of this experiment is inevitable. Just as the kindergarten, at first established and maintained by enlightened citizens, was ultimately taken over by the public school system, so these more modern educational projects which maintain a careful guardianship of the child both in regard to health and education, will also ultimately be taken over by the public school system. It is inevitable that working outside the home will become more and more easy for the mother who is unfitted for the work of domesticity. This will, of course, make it no less easy for the mother who chooses the old way, to continue taking care of her children in the home.

Schools of a new and enlightened order are the solution of the problem of the working mother for the present. But what will the future do for the situation? We can answer that question only by considering for a moment the kind of people we are. Like all Anglo-Saxons, we Americans are a romantic people. In addition to all our sharpness, shrewdness and practicality, we have a deep idealism. It is perhaps our greatest national asset. In this we contrast sharply with the Latins who are realists and whose greatest national asset is undoubtedly their sense of actuality. In the main, we Anglo-Saxons have always married for love. There is every evidence that we shall always continue to do so. The Latins, on the other hand, have always preferred marriage by arrangement; and, doubtless they will always cling to their system.

Anglo-Saxon and Latin Marriage. It is futile to generalize on a subject so vast that only the tiniest proportion of the whole evidence can ever be collected. No one of us can be prepared definitely to say which ideal of marriage—the Anglo-Saxon or the Latin—produces the happier marriage or the better children. But I personally am prepared to say—and only as the result of personal observation—that I think the best children result from love matches and that American mothers are the best mothers in the world.

The French system of the "dot" works badly from our point of view and from the point of view of the family and the race. Girls without dots do not often marry in France. There is, in consequence, a limited sex selection for prospective husbands. Perfection of physique, or mentality, or both; a strong domestic tendency and an overpowering maternal yearning may not be taken into consideration at all. It is, granted the proposed mate is neither diseased nor a moron, the dot which counts. Almost inevitably, the man who marries a woman, not his own sex-and-soul selected, tends to establish an auxiliary household.

The girl who is without a dot and therefore without prospect of marriage tends to enter into an irregular relation. The proportion of irregular to regular unions in the city of Paris alone is enormous. Children are not likely to result from these irregular affairs; and even in regular matrimony small families tend to be the rule. The reason for that is not far to seek. If there are a preponderance of girls in a family, there is placed upon the parents the extra financial burden of providing each of them with a dot. Undoubtedly these conditions—plus the fact that in the past the French could not, until a mature age, marry without the consent of the parents—had much to do with the declining birth-rate in France.

Shifting the Expense. In bearing children, women render society an inestimable service. They should be reimbursed for that service. If we provide the soldier who destroys life with a pension, we should certainly provide the woman who produces it with a pension. In fact, the value of the two services cannot be compared. The state should pay the mother a pension, lasting at least through the child's early years, for every child she bears.

Whenever I advance this theory my listeners always protest against the expense; the stupendous taxes which would be the result. I am far from being able to solve this problem from the economic point of view. However, it seems to me that if we transferred the money at present sunk in armies, navies, our whole complicated system of defense and offense, to a fund for pensioning mothers, we might not find it expensive after all. If, however, this would not financially cover the matter, I see no reason why bachelors and married women, childless through choice, should not pay taxes. I except single women, because often they are not childless through choice.

And without doubt, the constant effect will be to liberate women of all classes. It will mean that maternity will not be so great a financial gamble and that they will feel themselves free of the vagaries of criminal or incompetent husbands. To those mothers who are constitutionally unfitted for the care of children it will make possible the hiring of expert help inside the home until the children are sent to the perfect school outside the home. To those mothers of all classes who prefer to take care of their children inside the home, and there will always be plenty of such—it will mean an easement not only of the financial situation, but of the deadly routine. In all marriages it will tend to minimize the irritations, the constant presence of children.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Reheating the Roast. To heat a roast so that it will not become hard and dry, cover it with thickly greased paper and place in the oven.

Save the Brine. Don't be hasty when opening olives and throw out the brine and bottle. Save the brine for keeping the olives not used.

Speedy Preparation. If in a hurry to get dinner started, peel just a narrow strip entirely around the potato instead of the entire surface. The two ends will slip off easily when the potato is done.

The Sickroom. Don't forget that dark, gloomy sickrooms cover the vitality of the patient. If the light among the patient, have a vase of cheerful flowers in a position that they can be enjoyed, instead of the sunlight.

More Money for "Greens." New potatoes are very much more expensive than old ones just now, and many of us would rather use the old ones and spend the money saved on the fresh vegetables that are in market. A slice of lemon in the water in which old potatoes are cooked will keep them white and make them nice and meaty.

Distressing Symptoms of RHEUMATISM—tortured, aching joints and muscles—the anguished cries of a disordered system, seeking relief. Many satisfying experiences show a way to alleviate this suffering, like the following:

"An advice of a doctor I began the use of Mountain Valley Water for Rheumatism. I have been more than ten years suffering from the results obtained."

Original letter on file: Doctors say that kidney help, eliminate impurities from the blood, get rid of troublesome causes, to end Rheumatic pains. Drink Mountain Valley Water from Hot Springs, Ark. Very palatable. Try a case. We deliver.

PLANNING THE VACATION

MOST of us are now planning how we shall spend the vacation, and we should give this matter considerable thought. The really beneficial vacation is not the one that merely gives pleasure. It should send you back to your daily duties with a real zest for work. It should leave you with a cheerful view of life and sufficient vigor to gladly resume your tasks.

To secure a real vacation you should consider your regular employment; daily environment and physical condition are also important in deciding the way the vacation is to be spent. The vacation should bring the required rest and the decision must depend upon whether you need a rest of mind, body or nerves.

The woman of slight build and nervous temperament will probably get best results from a vacation at the seashore. The bracing salt air and the sea baths are especially restful to overworked nerves.

The women who are in the reducing class should spend their vacations in the mountains. The mountain climbing and the deep breathing of fresh air in high altitudes are especially conducive to the results they desire.

If you lead a sedentary life, spend the vacation days in activity and vice versa. If you thump a typewriter all year around, go camping with jolly friends or set up in the mountains somewhere. The saleswomen who are exhausted both physically and mentally will find the hospitable farmhouse an ideal spot. If you run a machine or are employed amid noisy surroundings, two weeks in the country will do you a world of good.

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX

"GRACIOUS—goodness!" she said at last upon quivering breath, her breast rising. Tears trembled on her lashes, but for the instant her eyes blazed.

"Well," Mr. Corey said wearily after a pause, "it's too bad—can't it?"

Too bad? Too bad? Ah, yes, it was indeed too bad! Silence filled the book-lined room, the very room she had taken such pains and such delight in furnishing so tastefully. She recalled Mrs. Corey had resented that! She had put some fresh pine boughs in the earthenware pot in the corner yesterday, and the office smelled fragrantly of balsam. The rumble of the presses below sent a fine tremor through the building. Both man and girl stared at the floor. They were thinking the same things; there was no need to voice them; both understood; it was all clear now to each.

He was right. The best thing—the only thing for her to do was to resign. That would immediately pacify his wife; it would avert the breach and save Corey from an ugly scandal which could only hurt him. And then there was herself to consider, her own good name, her mother and Alice, and there was Martin! Nothing stood in the way now of her giving him the answer for which he eagerly waited. Martin! Ah, there was a refuge for her, there was a haven ready to welcome her! He would take her to himself, protect her, shield her against these slandering tongues.

Suddenly at the thought of him, so merry and strong and confident, of his joy at the promise she was now free to make, the floodgates of her heart opened and, bowing her head upon her fiercely clasped hands, she burst into convulsive sobbing.

June sunshine streamed in through the open windows in an avalanche of golden light and lay in bright parallelograms on the floor. Jeannette was making the bed. She was in the gayest of spirits and sang as she punched the pillows to rid them of lumpiness, and smoothed them flat. She spread the brilliant cretonne cover, with its gaudy design of pheasants, over the bed, turned it neatly back two feet from the headboard, laid the pillows in place, and folded the cretonne over them, tucking it in gently at the top. The bedcover was not as long as it should have been, and it required nice adjustment to make it lap over the pillows. It was the Wahnaker man's fault, Jeannette always thought, when she reached this point in her morning's housework; she had told him with the utmost pains how she wished the cretonne to go, and it was his mistake that it was not long enough. Short as it was, it could be made to reach by allowing only a scant inch or two at the bottom. She had put the same material at the windows in narrow strips of outside curtaining, and there was a gathered valance across the top. The bedroom was "sweet,"—charming and beautifully appointed like the rest of her domain. Her mother and Alice had "raved" about everything. Martin liked it, too, though his wife wished he could find the same amount of pleasure in their little home that she did. Martin was like most men: he did not notice things, never commented upon her ideas and clever arrangements.

It had seemed so miraculous to Jeannette that she had not believed it would work, but it did, perfectly. No fault was to be found with anything connected with the wonderful establishment.

There had been plenty of money with which to furnish it just as Jeannette pleased. The publishing company had presented her with a check for two hundred and fifty dollars as a wedding gift in appreciation of her faithful services, and Mr. Corey had supplemented this with one of his own for a like amount.

"No, no—don't thank me,—please, Miss Sturgis," he had said almost impatiently as he handed it to her. "I feel so badly about your going, and I can never pay you for all you've done for me. This is a poor evidence of my gratitude and esteem. I wish I might make it thousands instead of hundreds."

In addition, he had sent her on the day she was married a tall silver flower vase that must have cost, Jeannette and Martin decided, almost as much as the amount of his check.

The Skimmers Are Happy

Happiness just spreads around.
Won't be confined and won't be bound.

—Skimmer the Swallow.

He did his best to make her happy.

HERE were no happier people in the Old Orchard than Skimmer the Swallow and Mrs. Skimmer. They were back in the house which they considered to be rightfully their own. Neither Timmy the Flying Squirrel nor Mrs. Timmy had returned. The Skimmers didn't know what to make of it. They couldn't believe that Timmy and Mrs. Timmy really had deserted that little house. So as they worked building their nest they took care never to leave that little house unguarded. Always one remained there while the other hunted for material with which to build the nest.

Now they might have used the soft, warm bed that Timmy and Mrs. Timmy had left in that little house. It really was a splendid bed. But it didn't suit Mrs. Skimmer at all. She had very decided ideas as to how a nest should be built for self-supporting Swallows. First, there must be a certain amount of soft, dead grass. Mrs. Skimmer was very fussy in getting this placed to suit her. When she had enough grass she insisted on feathers for the lining of the nest.

There had been no trouble in finding the soft grass, but the finding of feathers was another matter. They had to hunt and hunt to find enough. On their swift wings they skimmed just above, the ground all through the Old Orchard, and even out over the Green Meadows. As they skimmed along so swiftly their sharp little eyes were watching for a feather that might have been dropped by some of their feathered neighbors. But it was up around Farmer Brown's henyard that they searched most closely.

At last the nest was properly lined. Such a dainty nest as it was! Mrs. Skimmer was very proud of it. The morning after the nest was finished she sent Skimmer inside while she went out.

pleasant the long, tedious hours when she could not get out to fly about. He brought her all the news of the Old Orchard. He did his best to make her happy.

But Mrs. Skimmer didn't need to be made happy. She couldn't have been happier. To her the Great World was a very wonderful and beautiful place. Under her were the walls of the one little house in all Old Orchard which she had set her heart on. She had almost forgotten that Timmy the Flying Squirrel had ever had possession of that little house.

So the Skimmers were happy. And seeing their happiness, all their neighbors were happy, too.

Some Useful
Hints
For Honeymooners.

Substitute Bride
and Groom to Avoid Delays.

Dear editor:
No doubt everybody has heard of the book called Etiquette which who ever wrote same has been advertising same in all the newspapers and periodicals so I won't be violating no confidence when I mention same. Well it seems that on acct. of this being June when the most of the weddings is suppose to come off, why the publishers of Etiquette is running a special advertising campaign with a view to telling brides and grooms how to conduct their wedding without violating the rules of good usages.

Well I ain't read Etiquette on acct. of how much it costs in the 1st. place and in the 2d. place we only got a 5 ft. book shelf and where would we put it and in the 3th. place I was brought up in a 1st. class family where etiquette was their middle name so why should I spend money on trying to find out details which I knowed a long while ago.

But it seems to me like this month of weddings was a good time to say a few words in regards to what I have observed in regards to weddings, namely, that the sameness about same has spoiled many a budding life of happiness was it not for the sameness in regards to same. So without selling no book in regards to etiquette, why I have thought out the following few ideas as to how a wedding ought to be conducted and carried on so as to make it conclusive and at the same time a little different, because the trouble with most June weddings who I have heard of to date is because they seem to lack originality, or as the French has it, originality.

Etiquette and Mother Hubbard.
In the 1st. place, it don't never seem to occur to the parents who was running the wedding to have a substitute bride or groom as the case may be. How many times do you read on the front page of newspapers where a bride or groom was disappointed at the church door by the failure of the party of the 2d. part to arrive, most of which is charged to either infidelity or bachelor dinners.

If I was running the wedding I would hire a extra bride and groom, so as if neither of the stars showed up, or both, why I should have somebody else on hand to get married and people could go home and say they seen it. Suppose the original bride shows up and the original groom don't show up, why if she goes ahead and marries the substitute or utility groom, she is probably getting all the best of it because she has got a man that don't forget his engagements. Or vice versa.

On 2d. thoughts it would be a great idea to not allow the original bride or groom to show up at all because marriage is suppose to be a great adventure, and how can you have a greater adventure than have it with somebody you never seen and don't want to see?

Now in regards to the wedding banquet. It has always been etiquette to throw rice and old shoes at the delighted couple and I might say in passing that this custom come down from the old days of Euripides and Mother Hubbard and these 2 people was married in a house that was just sub let for the summer and had previously been lived in by a chinaman and his wife who wanted to get rid of remnants of their larder which consisted of rice and old shoes. So they throwed them at the bride and groom and the last named picked them up and took them along because they had the same tastes.

Honeymoon on the Subway.
But now days most people that get married is not chinaman and their wives so it is my suggestion that if you have got to throw anything at a bride and groom is to throw them a juniper berry and a pr. of new shoes and be sure the last named is a fit. By the time a bride and groom picks up all the rice that is throwed at them, the latter has generally always spoiled.

Now how about the honeymoon? I suppose the etiquette guide tells the boys and gals to go to Niagara Falls or abroad or 1899 and no hundreds islands. Well in the 1st. place the U. S. and Canadian govt. has just got together and decide it that Niagara is getting spoiled and if steps are taken, why they won't be no falls left for honeymooners to glare at. They don't say it in so many plain words, but the more honeymoon couples that glares at Niagara Falls why the more libel they are to get spoiled.

So in a spirit of patriotism I would suggest that for a couple of decades that wives don't take their husbands to Niagara Falls on their honeymoon and it seems to me in the 2d. place that when a couple is starting out on their nuptial seas they should ought to see the worse first so I would suggest a honeymoon trip on the Chicago river or the drainage canal or the N. Y. subway.

If they have got to go on a train why I would insist that the groom goes up to the brakeman and says where is the smoker and when that is pointed out, he turns to his wife and says I am going in the smoker and maybe I will see you later. And maybe when she sees him later she will think it is some stranger trying to flirt with her and like him so much the better.

MILLERAND TO RESIGN; 'CABINET
OF A DAY' BEATEN
IN THE CHAMBER

Deputies Vote, 329 to 214
Not to Recognize the Government of Francois
Marcel.

SENATE ACTION
IS POSTPONED

After Defeating Move for Interpellation, 154 to 144, Upper House Li
tens to President's Mes sage.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 10.—President Millerand has told the Cabinet of his intention to resign. The Cabinet has decided to resign. This was officially announced this evening.

The Franco-Marshall temporary Ministry was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 329 to 214 late today, on the adoption of a motion offered by Majority Leader Raymond Lemaire to open discussion with a Government in conformity with the sentiment of the country.

This action is considered equivalent to forcing President Millerand to resign.

Shortly before 5 a. m. the Chamber adjourned until 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon "to hear a communication from the Government which it is supposed will be President Millerand's resignation."

The Senate this afternoon voted down a demand by former Minister of Agriculture Cheron, spokesman for Premier Francois-Marcel, for an interpellation on the presidential crisis.

"This vote of 154 to 144 was first considered to constitute a defeat of the Francois-Marcel ministry, but the political leaders of the Chamber, after considering all the circumstances of the vote, decided it could not be so construed."

The final interpellation proposed by the Senate's action was that it constituted a simple postponement of discussion of Senator Cheron's interpellation without involving the fate of the Cabinet.

The Premier being absent, the question of confidence could not be raised. It was held, and consequently the vote was merely a matter of Senate procedure.

The ministry, also known as Cabinet of a Day, was constituted Monday for the express purpose of presenting to both houses of Parliament today the message from the chief executive expressing his refusal to resign his office.

Crisis Reaches Final Stage.
The presidential crisis reached its final stage with a decision by the Senate of the Radical Republic to insist upon a vote of confidence in the new Cabinet after hearing the message presented from President Millerand.

Why Bar Discussion of Message.
The leaders of the majority refused strongly to any discussion of the message and the various groups approved their attitude, which was the only thing to be done to indicate to the new Cabinet that the Parliament would have none to do with it.

Millerand was delegated by all groups to present the motion to the Chamber for a vote of confidence. The Chamber is required to vote on the motion within 48 hours in the competition is a matter of the rights of Parliament to refuse to accept the new Cabinet debate to which it is invited and decides to postpone discussion until the day when the new Cabinet will be presented to the Chamber with a message of confidence.

Millerand, President of the Republic, is trying to get the new Cabinet to resign. "I will refuse to do so," he said.
